The Legacy of Gold

Kirkland Lake is a unique landscape situated just south of the Arctic/Atlantic Watershed.

Visitors often seek out the location of the point on Highway 11 where waters flow either south into the Great Lakes or north toward Hudson Bay.

The landscape has an almost mystical aura to it, having changed lives with the discovery of major gold deposits in the early twentieth century.

For this year during the COVID-19 pandemic, before making plans, check ahead to ensure sites are open.

TOBURN MINE

Visitors are welcome to the site of the Toburn Mine in the east section of town, which was the earliest mine of the area and was in operation until 1953.

Visitors will find information displays to help them better understand the history of mining in Kirkland Lake.

WRIGHT-HARGREAVES MINE

Visitors can also drop by the Wright-Hargreaves mine which is now a park. A cenotaph sits on the grounds honouring those who fought in the wars, as did so many miners.

Mines and Mysteries

SIR HARRY OAKES CHATEAU

The American-born Sir Harry Oakes had originally been training for a medical career, but in 1898 he set off to find his fortune in mining.

He was successful in 1911 when he discovered the Lake Shore Mine in Kirkland Lake.

The famously productive mine turned him into a millionaire, and he was granted the title of baronet by King George VI in 1939 as a reward for his charitable endeavours around the world.

He married and had five children, but was mysteriously murdered while in the Bahamas on July 8, 1943. The murder was never solved.

One of his Kirkland Lake legacies is the building that was formerly his home. The Sir Harry Oakes Chateau at 2 Chateau Drive has been transformed into a museum and art exhibition gallery. Phone ahead to ensure the museum is open.

Musing about minerals

The Abitibi-Témiscamingue Mineralogical Museum in Malartic provides the visitor with insights into the regional geology and mining projects.

Visitors will also learn more about minerals from around the world.

Call ahead to ensure whether the museum has opened due to provincial restrictions caused by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Treasuring the region's nature

Opémican National Park in Quebec includes shore lands of both Lake Temiskaming and Lake Kipawa, and offers visitors an example of the natural beauty of the region.

The park offers camping opportunities as well as trails through pine forests and along waterways. The park offers something to young and old, including educational signage for children and spectacular scenery for adults.

Rouyn-Noranda merging the past with the future

Rouyn-Noranda grew out of an unusual geological landscape.

Copper and gold gave this community its beginnings, and the future of the Northwestern Quebec community is now well established.

Set in the northern landscape, Rouyn-Noranda can perhaps best be introduced by visiting the magnificent area parks that surround the community.

- Parc National d'Aigüebelle provides visitors with 51 kilometres of hiking by which they can get to know the geography of the region, its flora and fauna.
- Another nearby park is that of the Kékéko Hills. Hiking trails offer visitors an opportunity to admire the views, the textured beauty of the hills and forest, waterfalls, escarpments, and more.
- Self-guided tours are available to more deeply appreciate the history of both Rouyn and Noranda as told through their remaining homes.

Visitors can walk along the streets, view photographs, and admire the buildings that remain modern-day landmarks. Maps can be acquired from the town's information centre at 1675 Larivière Avenue.

- The community has produced many significant artists, performers and writers, including singer, songwriter and filmmaker Richard Desjardins.

A mural has been created in his honour on the south wall of the Rideau Boulevard viaduct. The 188-metre mural was painted by Annie Boulanger, Annie Hamel, Valery Hamelin, Ariane Ouellet, Johannine Seguin and Brigitte Toutant.

- The MA Musée d'art at 201 Dallaire Avenue, Local 154, offers an opportunity to view works of both local and visiting artists, as well as providing educational programming.
- Visitors can appreciate the works of area artists at La Fontaine des Arts at 25 Principale Avenue.
- A bike path runs around Lake Osisko and visitors can borrow peddle bikes and electric bicycles to ride around the lake.
- The Noranda Golf Club at 1 Chemin du Golf, offers nine holes, and is known for its quality of greens.

Le Club de Golf Municipal Dallaire on Dallaire Avenue offers 18 holes. Its wilderness setting offers an additional dimension for those who enjoy the outdoors.

The Embo Golf Club at 4251 Rue Saguenay has an easy terrain and does not require a reservation to visit. Disc golf is also available, for some additional fun.

Val-d'Or's Golden History

Val-d'Or, Quebec, is a place to explore and learn.

Many exhibitions and hands-on experiences have been created to introduce visitors to the history of the region. The natural region, the Indigenous past and present, the gold mining and early residents, and the present day community, enjoying the arts and modern-day life, are all reflected upon through the many things to see in Val-d'Or.

- Many art installations throughout the community help to tell its story. The mural at the Grands Ducs building development illustrates the grand natural landscape of the region, and the economic development that has occurred over the past century and more. Artists Michel Omen, Christian Ponton and Annie Boulanger created this mural.

- Gabriel Commanda, an Algonquin prospector, is considered one of the founding fathers of Val-d'Or. He is among the founding fathers who are depicted in the mural at the Cain, Lamarre, Casgrain & Wells building. The mural was created by Martine Beauchamps, Christian Ponton, Micheline Plante, Marie-Ève Dubé and Chantal Lapointe, under the supervision of Michel Omen.

Visitors will also enjoy a trip to the park which includes Gabriel Spring, the location of Gabriel Commanda's camp.

- A visit to the Bourlamaque Mining Village provides an opportunity for visitors to learn more about the lives of the people who have lived in the village down through the past century and more. Visitors can also learn more about the residents, past and present.

- The 12-foot high Miner Statue is located in the Lapointe Park and was created by Paul Salois and Laura Brown-Breetvelt. The park also has other statues relating to the town's history. Other statues relating to the mining history are located at the Old Lamaque Mine and in the downtown Lapointe Park, as well as the North mining transit centre.

- Artist Jacques Baril has created a mural at the Albert-Dumais Park, depicting places in the community including the St-Sauveur Church, mine headframes, and other important sites in Val-d'Or.

- The Champagne covered bridge spans the Vassan River. The 104-foot bridge was built in 1941.

- The first Russian Orthodox Church to be built in Abitibi-Témiscamingue was constructed in Val-d'Or in 1954. The Russian community had an important role in the development of the area.

- The J-P Roland Fortin Footpath allows visitors to continue to enjoy the visual works of area artists and photographers. Large panels of art are located along the footpath.

- The City of Val-d'Or offers an evening of music at the Rotary Tower. This free event is a popular place where visitors can tune in to FM 100.1 on the radio for a great show as the sun sets.

Tugging up the past

Visitors can take a trip back in time to learn about the tugboat era and its role in the forest industry. The T.E. Draper, situated on the shore of Lac des Quinze at 11 Rue T.E. Draper in Angliers, Quebec, was one of many tugboats which helped to haul wood over the lakes and rivers of the region. Visitors can also view a warehouse to better understand the activities associated with the work. There is also a temporary exhibition titled Cities and villages in Temiscamingue, from yesterday to today. Call ahead to ensure COVID-19 restrictions have not affected the opening.

Ville-Marie one of Quebec's prettiest villages

Ville-Marie is the oldest community in Northwestern Quebec, and in 2012 La Presse voted it as the prettiest village in the province.

Situated on the east shore of Lake Temiskaming, residents and visitors enjoy spectacular vistas of sparkling waters and crimson sunsets. In the winter, the lake is open to ice fishing enthusiasts with wide expanses for snowmobiling, skiing and snowshoeing.

In the summer an attended marina offers 86 slips and is situated within walking distance of many enjoyable features throughout the community.

The Centennial Park, located near the shoreline, includes an outdoor amphitheatre, trails, and picnic areas. The winter also offers plenty of sliding fun at the park.

Just to the south of Ville-Marie, in Duhamel-Ouest, Fort Témiscamingue, a national historic site, takes visitors back in time to the fur trade era. They can also walk through the Enchanted Forest.

Duhamel-Ouest is also home to the Marais Laperrière forest and wetland trail, where an observation tower is located.

Call ahead to ensure attractions are open to the public due to COVID-19 restrictions.

Much to see in Témiscaming

The picturesque Témiscaming has many unique features, making it well worth a visit.

Features include a spectacular view over the Ottawa River from the vantage of a lookout designed for that purpose. Another amazing spot is Gordon Creek which features a roaring waterfall and cascades pouring through a beautiful ravine, complete with a footbridge to get just that much closer to the raw power of nature.

A former railroad bed has been transformed into a 6.7 kilometre trail which runs through a lovely and natural park setting, and its train station now serves as the town's museum and art gallery. Before going, visit the Facebook page of Musée de la Gare to determine whether it is open, due to COVID-19 restrictions.

Experienced hikers, ATVers and snowmobilers, fishermen and hunters will all find Témiscaming to be the gateway to a magnificent wilderness.

The town was originally designed and built for the employees of the nearby pulp and paper mill, constructed by C.B. Thorne.

Thorne brought a number of works of art to the town, including an Italian bronze fountain, statues and a religious painting. Everyone can enjoy the fountain located in the downtown core.

Rayonier Advanced Materials, a global manufacturer, now owns the thriving business where guided tours are available with a reservation. Guided tours are also available for the town, which includes old pipes which once were used to draw water from the Lumsden dam to the Kipawa hydroelectric generating station.

At various locations, visitors can read poetry written by local students and posted for all to enjoy.

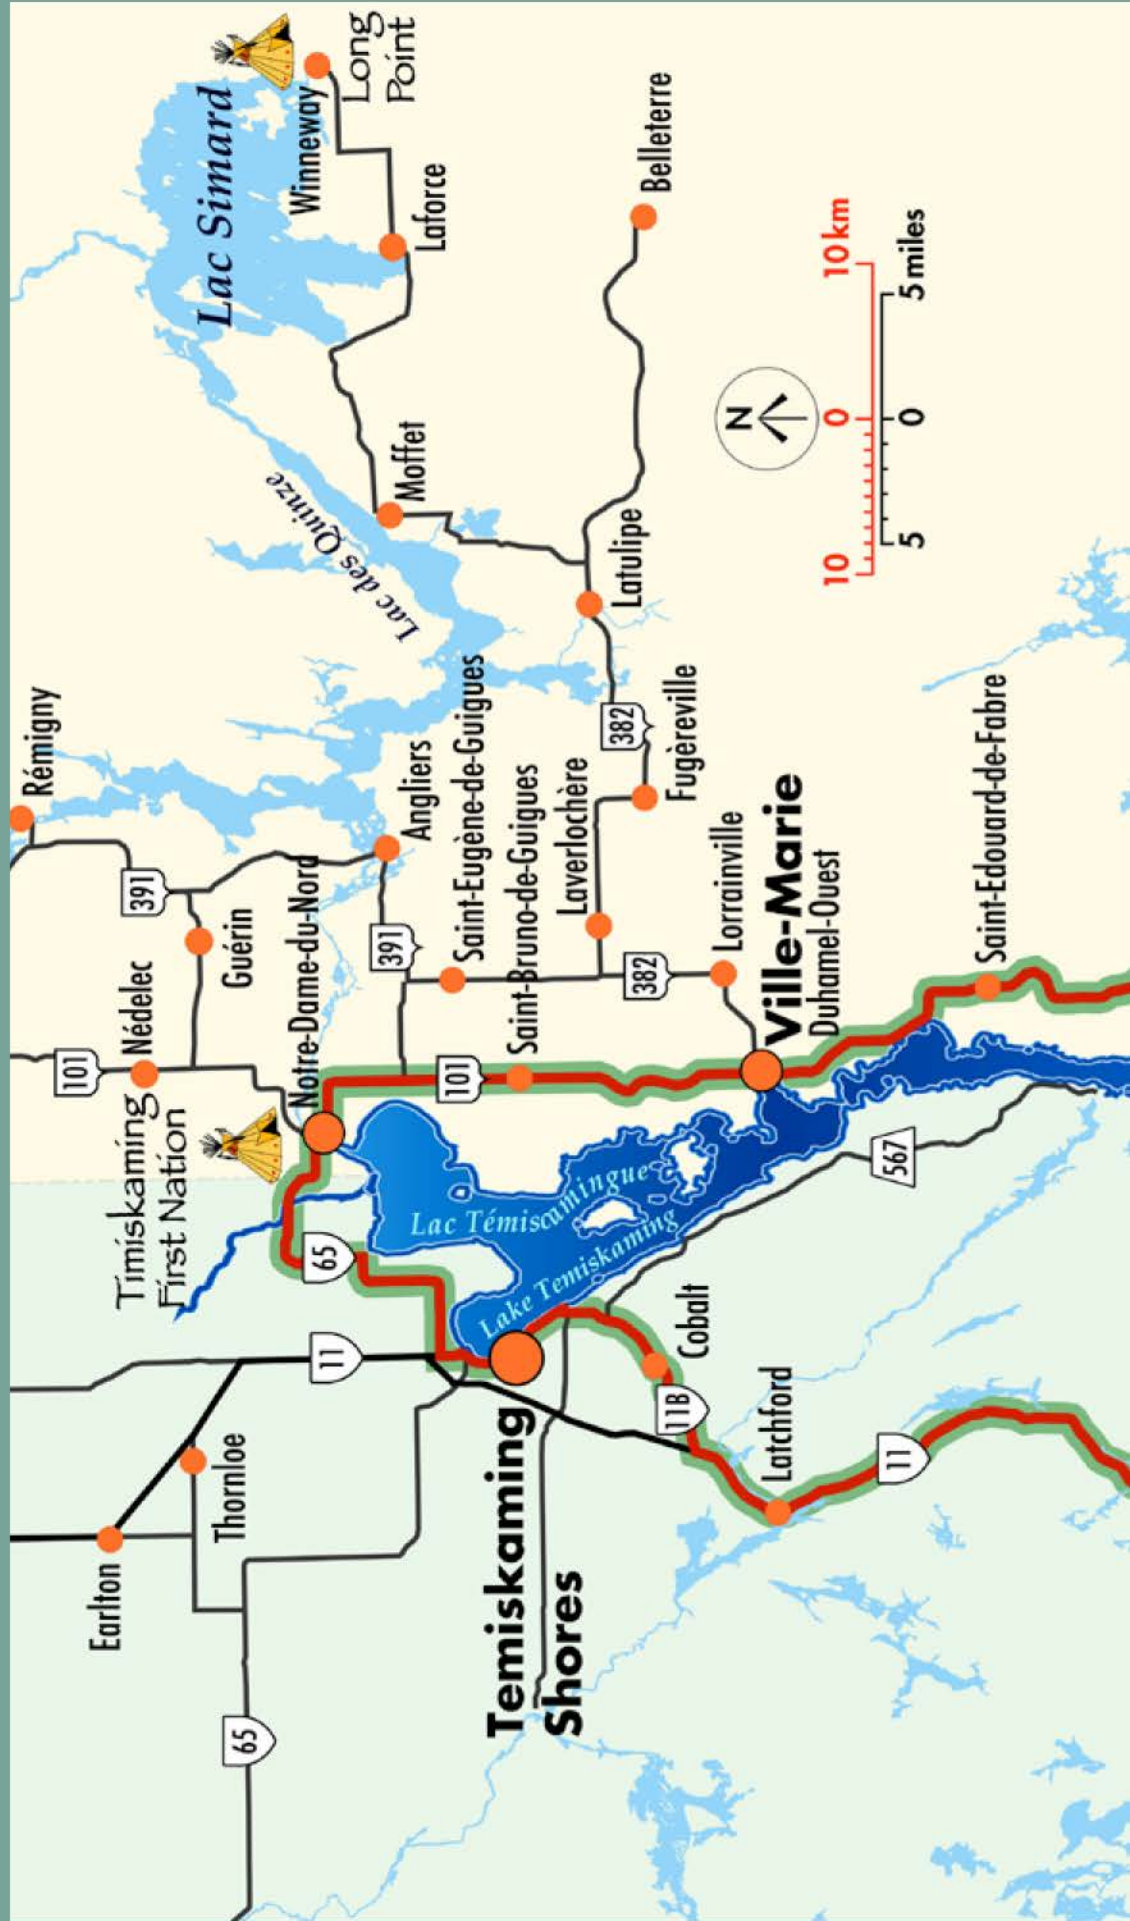

The town's bike path has remained open without impact by COVID-19 closures.
