New initiative offering masks for free

TEMISKAMING SHORES (Special) – Psst...do you need a mask?

In light of the directive to wear face coverings in indoor public spaces, the Temiskaming Health Unit is partnering with local businesses to set up “mask depots” where people in need can pick up disposable or reusable cloth masks for free.

“Everyone should have the opportunity to help prevent the spread of COVID-19 in our communities. But for many getting face masks for themselves or their families isn’t as easy as it sounds,” said Krystal Oviatt, public health promoter at the THU, in a media release.

“One of the many roles of public health is to be aware of and try to minimize the negative impacts of programming for key population groups,” she said.

“We don’t want anyone to be restricted by this requirement or to feel stigmatized.”

FALL MIGRATION

The fall migration is an exciting time when birds head south for the winter after they have nested and raised their young in the Boreal forests of the north. At the Hilliardton Marsh Research and Education Center, volunteer bird bander Julia Turner holds a warbler for banding on Saturday, August 22. See mover coverage on pages 8 & 9. (Staff photo by Sue Nielsen)

Funding for the masks came from The Temiskaming Foundation’s Emergency Fund.

Reusable cloth masks were sewn by individuals from across the district, and are available in adult and child sizes.

People in need of masks can drop by a depot and collect up to two reusable cloth masks or 10 disposable masks for free.

They’re available at a variety of locations, including:

- Elk Lake, J&S Variety
- Temagami, Petro-Canada

- Latchford, Dam Depot
- Cobalt, JJ’s Corner Store
- Haileybury, Mike’s One Stop
- New Liskeard, the Salvation Army Thrift Store
- Englehart, Valu-Mart
- Earleton, Cote’s Variety Store.

New foot care clinic steps forward

Darlene Wroe
Speaker Reporter

TEMISKAMING SHORES - Registered practical nurse Kim Campbell has opened her own foot care clinic in Temiskaming Shores.

Based at the Scott Chiropractic Health Centre at the Quality Inn building in Dymond Township, the service runs from Monday to Thursday.

Campbell brings her existing clientele to the new business, and is also accepting new clients.

She is affiliated with the Timiskaming Diabetes Program and can accept referrals from health care professionals to assist those who are diabetic and want foot care.

She started recalling clients on June 23 and worked steadily for three weeks to help clients who had not received foot care from the time of the onset of the pandemic, she related. She is now at the point where clients are returning for repeat appointments, and she has room on her schedule for new clients.

Campbell held an official ribbon-cutting ceremony August 7. She was welcomed by the Temiskaming Shores and Area Chamber of Commerce, the City of Temiskaming Shores, and the office of MPP John Vanthof.

Campbell related that in addition to her background as a registered practical nurse, she has taken speciality courses to provide advance and diabetic foot care.

“I’m dealing with people who have diabetes, the elderly, and people who have issues with their feet,” she said.

All the equipment used in her practice is autoclaved and sterilized at the hospital, she noted, to meet required standards.

Campbell will assess clients’ feet for issues such as deformities, callouses, corns, ingrown toenails and thickened nails.

“I can take care of all of that,” she said.

Campbell encourages people to pay attention to their feet, even before problems begin to be noticed.

She noted that for some people, as they get older, they can’t bend over to look after their feet, “so coming to see someone is beneficial” to ensure their feet are still well.

For most people, “they worry about their hair, their clothing, or the type of shoes they are wearing, but then they forget about their feet, but that’s the basis of our health structure.” Knees, hips, and backs can be affected if the feet have problems, she explained, “so if you don’t take good care of your feet you can end up with issues later on in your life.”

Campbell took her most recent upgrading course in the fall of 2019, and was doing home visits when she was approached by the Timiskaming Diabetes Program to see if she would see patients in a clinic setting, she explained.

Another nurse had been providing the service, which was known as Foot Wellness, but that nurse closed her business recently, creating an opportunity for Campbell to open her footcare business after she received the go-ahead from the Timiskaming Health Unit.

Those interested in contacting Campbell for an appointment can reach her through her Facebook page or by calling or texting her at 705-676-6678.

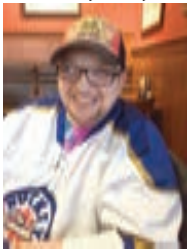

Her clinic is located at 998009 Highway 11.

She also has business cards located at the Timiskaming Diabetes Program and at the Scott Chiropractic Health Centre.

Grants awarded for policing initiatives

TORONTO (Special) – The Temiskaming Shores Police Services Board has received funding for enhanced drug and street crime enforcement.

The additional $67,500 comes as a Community Safety and Policing Grant. In a news release, the Ontario Ministry of the Solicitor General said police will work with a number of groups to support efforts to prevent drug and street crime.

Involved in the initiative are Crime Stoppers, Victim Services of Temiskaming and District, MADD, school boards and the Temiskaming Youth Justice Committee. The Kirkland Lake Police Services Board also received $67,500 to build a collaborative approach to mental health and addiction services.

In a news release, the Ontario Ministry of the Solicitor General said police will work with a number of groups to support efforts to prevent drug and street crime.

The ministry said the funding will help the Kirkland Lake OPP detachment expand its relationships with service providers “to ensure that individuals in crisis are provided the right care at the right time by the right service.”

The grant will offset the salary of an officer who will be designated as the detachment mental health liaison.

The liaison officer will establish a community situation table, help organize training for frontline staff who respond to mental health and drug-related situations, and work with local mental health and addiction services to set up referral protocols.

The Community Safety and Policing Grant program focuses on addressing both local and provincial community safety priorities.

Over a three-year period from 2019 through ‘22, the province said it’ll provide $181 million to 107 local projects across Ontario.

KAOS IN THE SKY

Several members of the Temiskaming and Region Model Aircraft Club were recently at their field on Highway 569 west of Tomstown. Roy Smith of North Cobalt is pictured here with his Kaos model airplane which he built from a kit and which is powered by an OS55 engine. The highly acrobatic plane provided an entertaining spectacle as it zipped through its loops over the field. Computer technology and other technology is rapidly adding to the activity. People are invited to come out to the field when members are present to learn more. (Staff photo by Darlene Wroe)

LIVE, LOVE, CAMP!

BUCKE-ROO CAMPING

By Robert Ritchie

Camping in Temiskaming this August was a mixture of sun and rain. Some days the rain came down so hard it caused washouts on many of the unpaved roads across Temiskaming that lead to campgrounds and campers’ tourist destinations. The weather helped balance the activities with some inside and some outside the campers, tents and RVs.

Week 5 of stage 3 of Ontario’s plan to reopen Ontario is holding its’ own by being stable at the amounts of new covid-19 cases. While other provinces are showing better signs of slowing down and containment. Ontario being the largest province with most of its’ population being concentrated in the greater Toronto area. Northern Ontario remains one of the safer places in Canada. With schools opening soon the government health experts and the heads of the educational systems have put together a well thought out plan to keep Temiskaming children safe and well protected from covid-19. Parents have also educated their children to the awareness of wearing facial coverings using helicopter arms for social distancing and washing/sanitizing their hands often. The camping season has ended for children during the week because of back to school. The weekends will be that much better and feel freer for them when they camp.

Now the camper commuting to work will find their vehicle in the mornings with a heavy dew, the sky not as bright, and the mornings slightly cooler. But there is still camping with more fires that are larger than the ones made in the heat of July, the marshmallows, smores and spider wieners still getting cooked, the stars have moved a bit but still shine bright in the Temiskaming sky, the birds still sing, and the children still laugh and smile.

Some of Temiskaming’s campgrounds are adapting to the new normal due to covid-19 keeping their regular activities but changing them to meet health professionals’ advice of social distancing, face protection and washing/sanitizing their hands.

So, think outside the box while staying within the health professional advice. Have fun and be safe. Any comments can be emailed to buckaroo.camping@gmail.com.

Fall bird migration in full flight at Hill

Speaker Reporter

HILLIARDTON — Bird banders at the Hilliardton Marsh Research and Education Centre (HMREC) are getting a bird’s eye view of the fall migration, which began at the Marsh on August 1 and runs until the end of November.

The fall migration of birds, flying from the northern hemisphere to the south, is in full swing at the HMREC, located in Hilliard Township.

The marsh serves as an important stopover for migrating birds.

Birds can find places to rest and eat on their long journeys to the Southern United States and further afield.

STATION

The bird banding station at the Hilliardton Marsh is just one of three in Northern Ontario - the other two are located near Thunder Bay.

Normally, banding season is open to the public but because of COVID-19 the Marsh is closed, except for group bookings.

“We are offering group online bookings for now of up to 10 people at a cost of $30 each until the end of August,” noted expert bird bander Bruce Murphy.

HMREC recently welcomed a group from Timmins.

He noted the bird banders at the marsh have so far banded 4,450 birds in 2020 with 1,700 this month alone.

“There are four times as many birds passing through in the fall because they have babies with an average of four chicks per nest,” noted Murphy.

A surprise opportunity landed when two black-billed cuckoos were banded bringing the total number ever banded at the Marsh to eight.

“Two in one year is unusual,” said bander Chris Shulka.

When describing the 2020 banding season Shulka noted the spring migration was slow because of “strange weather patterns. It was warm early and the birds shot right over us. Then it turned cold in May and then warmer again and they shot right over us again. It was a hit and miss season of banding. The species we are seeing are warblers, vireos, thrushes, hummingbirds and rose breasted grosbeaks so far this fall.”

Bird banding is a valuable tool in studying migration patterns and the conservation of birds while teaching citizen scientists about the wonders of birds.

Bird banding involves the capture of migratory birds in mist nets and retrieving them to take measurements such as species, sex, age, weight and general health. A bander applies a tiny numbered band to the bird’s leg and then the bird is released back into the wild. If the bird is ever re-caught at the same station or elsewhere, researchers can use that data to learn how birds survive and their migration routes.

BANDERS

Former Northern Ontario Heritage Fund Corporation-sponsored intern Sarah Manderstrom left the marsh to be closer to her family during the COVID-19 pandemic, which proved a boon to university student Doug Manners who arrived from finishing his studies just in time to step into her role as the intern at the Marsh.

“Doug will be with us until June of 2021,” noted Murphy. “He is familiar with the Marsh because he was a ranger crew leader a few years ago. We could not have asked for a better cohort this year.”

And because of COVID-19 pandemic safety measures, the Marsh has had to limit the number of volunteers participating at the banding facility this year.

Julia Turner is another volunteer bander working alongside Murphy, Shulka, Manners and Joanne Goddard.

A big disappointment for the Marsh banders was the cancellation of the annual Hummingbird Garden Party where adults and children could see hummingbirds up close and learn about them and monarch butterflies which hopefully leads to a lifelong interest in birds and insects. The marsh continues to band hummingbirds and tend to the lush hummingbird garden, which has grown exponentially this summer.

Volunteers Jane MacLaughlin and Deborah Murray “do a fabulous job of managing the garden and next year we will have some new activities to offer visitors,” noted Murphy.

Par ses sacrements, une alliance est établie entre Dieu et nous dans nos cœurs, comme l'annonçait le prophète Jérémie (31, 31-34) : « Je mettrai ma loi, au fond de leur être, je l'écrirai sur leur cœur. Ils seront mon peuple, je serai leur Dieu ». Tél : 705-672-3296 / Adresse : 341 Sutherland Way, Haileybury, ON

WE DON'T BREW OUR BEER FOR THE AWARDS.

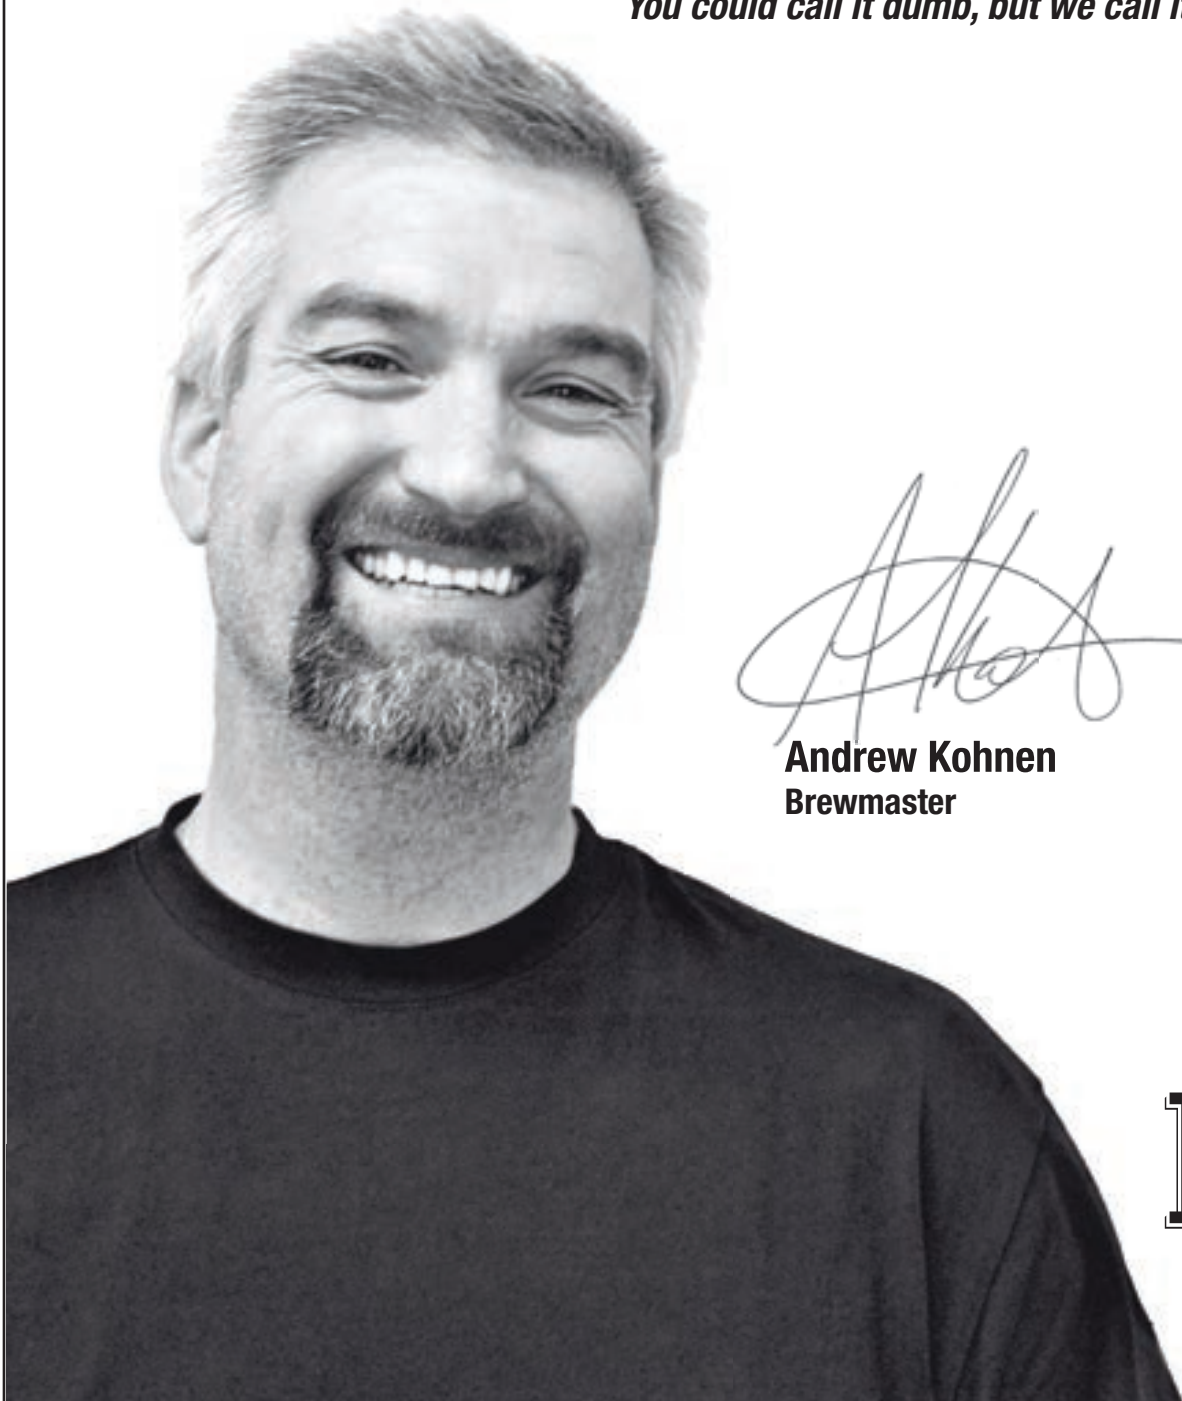

BUT HE DOES!

Our brewmaster, Andrew Kohnen, threw away a successful career in logistics to pursue his dream of reconnecting with the brewing roots of his family. This carried him to the UK's prestigious Brewlab in Sunderland, England, where he procured the alchemy that would drive his signature brewing style.

He took what he could from there and ventured to Scotland, Cornwall, and ultimately to Krefeld, Germany, working in the same brewery that had belonged to his ancestors. He came home to Canada for Hockley.

You could call it dumb, but we call it destiny.
