No evictions Provincial policy costs DTSSAB $75 grand

Speaker Reporter

DISTRICT - The District of Timiskaming Social Services Administration Board (DTSSAB), which administers social housing for the district, has written off $75,187.27 in uncollected rents and maintenance fees.

DTSSAB approved writing off the 2021 arrears at its regular meeting January 19.

Housing manager Lyne Labelle noted to the board that former tenants cannot live in social housing units anywhere in the province until their arrears are paid.

"This is a direct result of not being able to have any evictions in 2021," she said as she reported to the board.

"Some tenants took advantage of the situation and did not pay their rent." One reason this year's amount is so high is that one tenant alone owed almost $20,000 for rent and maintenance.

"The housing services program works with tenants and often enters into repayment agreements to avoid eviction," said Labelle in an email interview.

Although there has been an increase in unpaid rents during the pandemic, there was not a dramatic change in tenant income, she said.

"Individuals made some bad choices by not paying their monthly rent on a regular basis, which resulted in accumulations of rent arrears that were unmanageable," she continued.

Tenants are also responsible for maintenance costs caused by negligence, she explained.

"Previous tenants who incur arrears are entered into a province-wide database," said Labelle.

"Arrears must be paid in full to the housing provider where the arrears were incurred to be eligible for housing anywhere in the province. In Timiskaming, individuals who enter into a repayment agreement can be added to the wait-list, however (they) will not be eligible for a housing offer until the arrears are paid in full."

Labelle commented that DTSSAB has on several occasions raised concerns to the Ontario Ministry of Municipal Affairs and

Housing about the Landlord and Tenant Board

(LTB) hearings and rent freeze, and through the various provincial-municipal engagement tables in which DTSSAB participates.

She added that the issue "is province-wide and continues to have a negative impact on our financial and human resources as we navigate through LTB processes related to these issues for municipal service managers and district social services administration boards."

She added that DTSSAB plans for arrears in its annual budget "as we understand that not all tenancies will be successful regardless of the efforts we make."

Labelle noted that there has been an increase in efforts to assist people with housing during the pandemic, including prevention assistance for rental arrears and energy-related costs.

gency shelter solutions, increasing homelessness, rapid rehousing needs rising out of events such as home and apartment fires in 2021, and the period following as long-term housing is secured.

The rising cost of living, especially with food, and the low to no wage increases are also impacting people on the Ontario Works program and the Ontario Disability Support Program, she added.

"In addition, the social assistance rates have not increased since 2018."

She noted that DTSSAB has "recently implemented a 'functional by-name list' for individuals experiencing homelessness which helps connect them to available resources to help make them housing-ready."

DTSSAB is also advocating for, and providing support to, the development of Zack's Crib (a shelter in New Liskeard expected to open this spring), she noted.

Ontario invites input on '22 budget

TORONTO (Special) – What do you want to see in the upcoming provincial budget?

The Ontario Ministry of Finance is now accepting input from individuals and organizations as the province prepares to release its 2022 budget by March 31.

“It is clear that while the COVID-19 pandemic is not over yet, our government will continue to make decisions that will lay a strong, stable fiscal foundation that Ontario workers, families and entrepreneurs can build on,” said Finance Minister Peter Bethlenfalvy in a news release announcing the launch of budget consultations.

“We are looking for ideas that will help us continue to build Ontario’s long-term prosperity and create jobs, while supporting workers and communities in every corner of our province,” he said.

Ideas can be submitted by an online survey, email, or mail.

A series of virtual consultations began earlier this week.

To learn more, go to ontario.ca/budgetconsultations.

The deadline for submissions is February 11.

Naming the top 10

TORONTO (Special) – There’s no Tom, Dick or Harry in the top 10, but a lot of Noahs, Liams and Benjamins have made their appearance in Ontario.

Ontario recently released its annual list of the most popular infant names of 2020.

For the second consecutive year, Noah took the top spot as the most popular boy’s name, with Liam a close second.

For girls, Olivia remained the most popular, as it has been for 11 consecutive years.

Rounding out the boy’s names are Benjamin, Oliver, Jack, Lucas, Theodore, William, Ethan and Leo.

And for girls, the number two spot went to Charlotte, followed by Emma, Amelia, Sophia, Ava, Isla, Chloe, Evelyn and Mia.

Understanding and Managing Anxiety

Everyone feels tense, worried or nervous at times. This is anxiety and it’s a natural response to stress.

In small doses, anxiety can be a good thing. It can motivate us and make us more productive. A little bit of fear may push us to study harder for that next exam or prepare for that job interview. And a burst of anxiety can even be a lifesaver when it helps us get out of the way of danger. But too much anxiety can be a problem. If feelings of tension, fear and worry are there too much of the time and get in the way of everyday activities, it could be the sign of an anxiety disorder. Like depression, anxiety disorders are a common problem. In fact, sometimes depression and anxiety occur together. Anxiety disorders may not go away by themselves, but they are treatable.

Treatment for Anxiety:

Some types of counselling along with certain medications, prescribed by a health care provider, can be helpful in dealing with an anxiety disorder. Specifically, cognitive behaviour therapy (CBT) is often the first choice for treatment. Medications known as selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs) may be used in addition to therapy, if necessary.

Managing Anxiety – Self-Help Tips:

Take care of yourself:

- Eat right, sleep right, be physically active!
- Avoid alcohol and street drugs. These may seem like a way to make yourself feel better, but in the long run, they can make things a lot worse.
- Know what triggers your anxiety and reduce stress where and when you can.

Learn how to chill out:

- Learning how to relax deeply can take time and practice. Some examples include deep breathing mindfulness meditation or yoga. These types of activities can help calm both body and mind. Some great apps you might consider trying are Calm or Headspace.

Stay connected with friends and family:

- Too much time alone can allow worries and anxieties to grow. Connecting with others can give you a break from your worries. Staying connected also means that others can be there for you, to listen to your concerns and provide support. In-person connection throughout the pandemic has been a challenge but connecting virtually is a great alternative.

Spend time in nature:

- Get outside -- there is more and more evidence that just being in nature is good for our mental health. And it’s a great place for exercise and relaxation.

EDITORIAL

Silence is not an option

Recently a Timmins high school teacher was expelled from his teaching duties by the Ontario College of Teachers for promoting anti-Semitism and COVID conspiracy theories.

This educator, who was fired back in 2019, was a holocaust denier and questioned the figure of six million deaths during the Holocaust as well as discounting the tragedy of the Holocaust to his students.

It is the first time in the college's history that they have kicked out a member accused of teaching neo-Nazi and Holocaust denial in a class.

You might wonder why this issue would be relevant to people in this region and further afield?

We know several communities across the north had Jewish families residing in them and Timmins itself had a thriving Jewish community with a synagogue.

There is no place in our society for Holocaust denial, especially in schools.

We must condemn hatred, bigotry and discrimination in any form in our communities and schools at every turn.

Because if we fail to stand up against this type of hatred then we are validating the oppressor. As author Elie Wiesel said in his famous quote, "We must take sides. Neutrality helps the oppressor, never the victim. Silence encourages the tormentor, never the tormented."

Silence is not an option in a free and just society.

And in recent days we have learned that racist slurs were hurled at a black defenceman named Jordan Subban in an East Coast Hockey League game.

This coming on the heels of a recent incident in the American Hockey League when a racist gesture was made towards Tuscon Roadrunners forward Boko Imama.

How ironic, in the same week this happened, the first black player to play in the NHL, Willie O'Ree, had his number retired by the Boston Bruins.

It's a slippery slope, racism and hatred, and it can creep into the lexicon of our lives if we aren't mindful.

Racism and hatred must be challenged in all its ugly form if we are ever going to have an inclusive, free, progressive and loving society.

Use your life for good

*“How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a weary world.”*

William Shakespeare

As winter is sprinting past us, I'd like to talk a little bit about the good in our lives.

I know people have been struggling to cope with the pressures of the pandemic, let alone life in the fast lane of the 21st century.

And I understand people are facing untold challenges in their lives, but continue to get up every day and do what they do in our communities.

If ever there was a time to do good, it is now.

People are hurting and kindness is the superpower we all need.

How many humans don't have a bed to sleep in right now?

If you woke up this morning and rolled out of your warm bed, you are privileged.

How would any of us feel living in Afghanistan or Ukraine right now?

Rampant violence, cities burning and people are fleeing by the thousands from the brutal Taliban.

And yet our country cuts and runs from helping some remaining Afghans from getting out of the country?

I don't care about Jennifer Lopez's new mansion or her renewed love affair with Ben Affleck. I care about the people who have lost everything and the women and children being brutally raped and abused by the Taliban.

And the suspected gravesites being found at residential schools now numbering over 5,000.

I care about the rates of domestic violence where, on average, the police are reporting at least 30 cases per month in the Temiskaming region that they are investigating.

As pressures mount on all of us in terms of the economy and the pandemic, quite often our mental health suffers and we may act out in violent ways towards people we are supposed to love.

I wonder how many acts of violence are not being reported?

Those acts of violence are affecting entire families and worse, children.

Isaac Asimov said violence is the last refuge of the incompetent and I agree.

Today I invite you to join me in saying enough is enough.

Can we please care more?

And to those refusing to get a COVID-19 vaccination because they think the virus is simply a hoax or their beliefs don't allow it: people are dying, doctors and nurses are working in war zones in our filled-to-capacity hospitals and seniors have been left to die alone.

People have lost their businesses, their homes and their bank accounts are depleted and there is little hope in sight for so many.

Never underestimate how your life can positively impact others in not so obvious ways.

Okay, I am off my soapbox. Please, for the sake of everyone, do not be afraid to use your life for good.

Interprovincial agreement supports Les Francophonie

“The 2021 call for projects was a great success and we look forward to building on this momentum to support the implementation of new projects that will promote synergies and closer ties between our two Francophonies.”

“The excellent collaboration between our two governments demonstrates that the Francophonie is an invaluable asset,” said Sonia LeBel, Québec’s Minister Responsible for Canadian Relations and the Canadian Francophonie.

These partnerships have concrete and positive benefits for Francophones, support the vitality of the French language and contribute to closer ties between Québec and Ontario.”

Pandemic worsens working conditions for paramedics

DISTRICT (Special) - The union representing most Ontario paramedics is calling on the provincial government to address the mental health of emergency medical services staff amidst gruelling working conditions through the pandemic.

“Paramedics and dispatchers have struggled with heavy workloads for years. But the sharp increase in call volumes and lengthier offload delays at hospitals during the pandemic has worsened working conditions. Paramedics and dispatchers are burning out and desperately require better mental health supports,” said Niko Georgiadis, an active paramedic and chair of the CUPE Ambulance Committee of Ontario, which represents nearly 6,000 paramedics and dispatchers across Ontario.

The union is calling on the Ontario government to standardize mental health benefits for emergency medical services workers across the province to eliminate regional disparities, and to provide paramedics priority access to mental health providers.

In a survey conducted last October, responses by 1,440 of CUPE’s emergency medical services members across 22 regions revealed that chronic understaffing and crushing workloads were having a profoundly negative impact on their health: 92 per cent said they did not have enough staff to meet the needs of their communities; 97 per cent said their workload has increased during the pandemic; 91 per cent work overtime regularly. About half of them say they log anywhere from 13 hours to over 36 hours of overtime a month; 84 per cent said their workload is impacting their mental and/or physical health; 73 per cent said their employer is not doing enough to address their mental health; 67 per cent said their workload has resulted in headaches/migraines, with 66 per cent saying they have experienced anxiety and/or panic attacks.

Garry Janes readies to leave Temiskaming Shores for a couple of days of sledding, or maybe more. The Toronto snowmobiler arrived January 21. “We booked it because it was the one place that had open trails,” said Janes, who is originally from Timmins. Sledding within the law

DISTRICT (Special/Staff) – The OPP are reminding snowmobilers of the law.

In a news release, Temiskaming OPP say concerns have been raised over snowmobilers travelling on pedestrian walkways and on private property without permission.

There have also been complaints about snowmobilers causing excessive noise and paying insufficient attention to pedestrians and other vehicles.

Police remind snowmobile operators that they can be charged under the Trespass to Property Act for entering a premise when entry is prohibited.

Police say signs do not have to be posted to advise the public of no trespassing.

“You should never ride on private property without the permission of the landowner,” said Inspector Joel Breault, commander of the detachment, in the release.

Snowmobilers operating on municipal streets or roads must also heed the following:

- Do not drive a snow machine more than 20 km/h on a highway where the posted speed limit is 50 km/h or slower.

- A snow machine operator along a highway must be at least 16 and hold a driver’s licence or snow machine operator’s licence.

- A snow machine must have a muffler in good working order and it may not be removed, modified or rendered inoperative.

- Do not consume alcohol or drugs when operating a snow machine. Penalties are the same as those for operating any vehicle while impaired, including immediate licence suspension or losing driving privileges.

Breault said the OPP are committed to ensuring a safe, enjoyable experience for all snow machine operators on not only Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs (OFSC) trails but also roadways, private property and non-maintained trails.

For further information about OFSC trails, see www.ofsc.on.ca.

For more about snowmobile safety and the rules of the road, see mto.gov.on.ca/english/safety/snowmobile-safety.shtml.

LA PAROISSE CATHOLIQUE SAINTE-CROIX nous invite à prendre conscience et réfléchir sur notre relation personnelle avec Jésus Christ par les 7 sacrements offert par l'église catholique : le Baptême, la Confirmation, l'Eucharistie, la Confession, l'Onction des malades, l'Ordination et le Mariage. Par ses sacrements, une alliance est établie entre Dieu et nous dans nos cœurs, comme l'annonçait le prophète Jérémie (31, 31-34) : « Je mettrai ma loi, au fond de leur être, je l'écrirai sur leur cœur. Ils seront mon peuple, je serai leur Dieu ». Tél : 705-672-3296 / Adresse : 341 Sutherland Way, Haileybury, ON
