Pool of water treatment funding flows to Temagami

Sue Nielsen
Speaker Reporter

TEMAGAMI — Under the Investing in Canada Infrastructure Program (Green Stream), significant funds are flowing to the municipality of Temagami for upgrades to the Temagami South Water Distribution System and the Temagami North water tower.

Council was notified May 2 of the good news that the town had received provincial and federal funds to help with the total project expenditure of $4,153,100.

The federal government is chipping in with $1,661,240 and another $1,384,228.25 came from the provincial government.

"Yes, we were quite excited and more so relieved about this funding stream," said Temagami mayor Dan O'Mara in an email interview.

"Handling the two water and sewer systems are major expenses for the people of Temagami."

He mentioned the town is dealing with issues at the water tower located in Temagami North, with a need for filtration upgrades and the installation of a new building for a new ultra violet system.

"So getting some funding to deal with other issues was a must. One thing we are more aware of now than ever is that it is difficult to move a community forward if your infrastructure is not there to support this. This investment will help us for sure."

Council was notified that planning for this project has begun with the intent of having the project completed by October of 2026.

The mayor acknowledged the tremendous amount of work that goes into securing the large

Pool of water treatment funding flows to Temagami

Continued from Front amount of funding to upgrade the town's water treatment plants, which involved many meetings with delegations from the provincial and federal ministries, including the Ministry of Infrastructure.

He thanked the town's staff for their work in completing applications that were sent out to various levels of government.

With the projects receiving council approval as indicated in the town's 2022 municipal budget, and with the completion of the various projects, the town will receive a total of $3,545,095 in provincial funding and $1,720,240 in federal funding.

Upgrades will include a UV system for the Temagami north tower, a secondary treatment train in the water treatment plant and the upgrading of pumps and controls.

Council was also informed the municipality has received funding under the Municipal Modernization Program, monies for a large format printer/scanner as well as a large format laminator.

These machines will be used to finalize the Official Plan and later the comprehensive zoning by-law review. Also funded from this project is an intern position, which will assist with the digitization project. The town has hired Nicole Claveau for the job.

A bandage solution

This comes as no surprise: there is a shortage of health care professionals across Northern Ontario.

The lack of doctors, nurses and PSWs is straining the health care system to the max.

Heaven forbid we begin to see a sort of privatization taking place where hospitals and long-term care facilities are competing with private for-profit agencies that are not dependent on government funding streams for trained workers.

The private organizations can offer much higher salaries and more flexible working conditions than most public institutions and nursing homes.

With a shortage of workers a publicly funded health care facility could see its government funding clawed back even more as they cannot meet service targets.

The entire province has been held back by shortages of doctors, nurses and PSWs as governments place limits on class sizes for training healthcare professionals.

This is greatly affecting patient-to-doctor ratios.

At the recent Federation of Northern Ontario Municipalities conference, Dr. Sarita Verma, president of the Northern Ontario School of Medicine (NOSM) said the government recently announced 41 spaces for training new doctors.

But the problem with that scenario is half of those spaces are reserved for the new medical school at the former Ryerson University.

She said it will take years for those doctors to graduate, but in the meantime those spaces would be far better utilized at NOSM.

The 41 new training positions announced by the Ford government seems like a bandage on the problem at best.

Dr. Verma points out that those new training spaces would help to ensure that physicians trained at NOSM stay in the north.

The health care professional gap then leaves entire communities, hospitals and long-term care homes having to come up with extra funds to retain and recruit health care professionals across the north.

Requiem for a community

"Your lives light up the world." Jesus

I tried to write this column about a totally different topic, but my mind and heart kept pulling me toward the tragedy in Latchford last week.

My weekly columns come from events in my life and most often they involve local happenings.

Emotions tend to go underground to percolate in my brain and then they eventually rise to the surface.

A highly emotional moment came last week when a police diver pulled two Latchford men from the icy cold waters of the Montreal River.

It was a horrific tragedy involving the deaths of George Brunton and Robert Hachey.

Last fall I sat at George Brunton's table interviewing him for our Remembrance Day tabloid because he was a Korean War veteran.

He was smart, articulate, funny and quite the character.

I did not know Robert Hachey but I heard such kind words spoken about him as he was praised for his friendliness as the Latchford landfill attendant.

I was on the scene at the Latchford Dam in my official capacity as a reporter. But I was also there as a human being witnessing people's pain and heartache.

I saw the absolute professionalism of the Ontario Provincial Police as the missing persons rescue mission took place.

I cannot imagine how police officers handle rescue missions of that magnitude.

A small group of Latchford residents held a constant vigil near the dam.

Latchford councillor Francine Miller

Blowe showed what she was made of when she brought soup and sandwiches to the police as they worked to recover the two men.

When the world is at its darkest, some people shine the brightest.

Every good deed, every act of kindness and positive word helps the flame of hope burn brighter.

Unexpected loss can help to remind us of a fundamental truth - our common humanity.

This tragedy acted like a needle, stitching families, friends and the community together when it is was most needed.

In a time full of so much violence, anger and hatred, small acts of kindness can make a big difference -beyond what we can even imagine. As a northerner, I was proud of the salt-of-the-earth people of Latchford, who dealt with a difficult situation with compassion and respect.

But most of all, I was inspired by what Robert Hachey's daughter Carole said to me.

She told me how important it is to say "I love you" at the end of phone calls.

She and her dad did that. They said I love you to each other when ending their calls.

Hug your loved ones and hold them close, we are not promised tomorrow.

I offer my deepest condolences to the families of Robert Hachey and George Brunton.

The Old Mission's place in history

DISTRICT (Staff) - While the Old Mission site is out of the way, located on the shore of Lake Temiskaming in Lorrain Township, it is very much central to the development of the Temiskaming region in Ontario and the Temiscamingue region in Quebec.

Local historian Florent Héroux has once again delved into the history relating to the role of the Franco-phone people and the Catholic Church in helping to develop the region, and creating a book filled with details right down to the names of the people who passed through the doors of the buildings that once stood at the site.

In his newest book, titled The Old Mission, Héroux details the establishment and activities of Mission Saint Claude, which served the people of the area from 1863 to 1887.

Filled with gems of information and photographs, the book helps to bring forward information that might otherwise be forgotten.

Through the direction of the church, and the determined dedication of the priests and nuns who built up the site and helped the people, the Old Mission is still remembered, even though there is now little there in the way of a physical reminder.

The Mission Saint Claude was “a centre of devotion and evangelization comprised of a church, a school, a hospital, an orphanage and lodging for passers-by and arriving settlers,” Héroux writes in the opening of the book.

A timeline of the site's development, the names and characters of the priests, nuns and many people they helped, letters, and missions and much more provide an insight into a time when the region was changing, and much of its influence was coming from that point.

What You Should Know About Lyme Disease

Lyme disease is a potentially serious infection that you can get if you're bitten by an infected blacklegged tick (also called a deer tick).

If you work outdoors or participate in outdoor activities such as golfing, hunting, camping, fishing, hiking, and walking in fields, you may be at greater risk for tick bites.

Cover up and wear:

- light-coloured clothing, so it's easier to see ticks
- closed-toed shoes
- long-sleeved shirts
- long pants, tucked into your socks
- special clothing designed to repel ticks

Use insect repellent

Use an insect repellent, or bug spray, that says “DEET” or “icaridin” on it. Put it on your clothes and exposed skin. Always read the label for directions on how to use it.

Put clothes in the dryer

Kill any ticks that might be on your clothing by putting your clothes in a dryer on high heat for at least 10 minutes before washing them.

Check yourself and your children

After being outdoors, check for ticks on yourself and your children. Look:

- behind your knees
- on your head
- in your belly button
- in your groin area
- in your underarm area
- on the back of your body – use a mirror, or ask someone to check for you

It's a good idea to have a shower as soon as you can to wash off any ticks.

Check your pets for ticks

After being outdoors, check your pets' skin and remove any ticks you find. Ask your veterinarian about options to help keep ticks off your pets. If you have been bitten by a tick and develop fever, headache, muscle and joint pains, fatigue, and a skin rash, especially one that looks like a red bull's eye in the weeks after being bitten, promptly contact your primary care provider. Bring the tick with you to your medical appointment, if possible, as it may help your provider assess your illness.

Digging and paving on tap for Thornloe

Darlene Wroe
Speaker Reporter

THORNLOE - The Ministry of Transportation has plans for improvements along Highway 562 running through the Village of Thornloe.

There will be new ditching through the town, along with paving over a 475-metre distance, and ditching on Church Street.

Wills Partners in Engineering has been contracted to prepare the plan and an open house was held in the Village municipal office April 21.

Wills transportation engineering manager Gord Krieger said at the event that there is no intention to remove the existing sidewalks running along Main Street, and there is even discussion about scraping away sod growing up around the sidewalk slabs to clean them up. He stated that the new ditches will be very shallow. The work will include adding topsoil and grass around the newly ditched area for rehabilitation after work is complete.

The project was requested by the municipality as a result of local concerns about water not draining away from properties due to crushed culverts.

The project is slated for 2024, but MTO area manager Raymond Hong, who was also at the open house, said the project could possibly be moved up in time, depending on funding availability, or the availability of equipment and manpower from nearby projects.

In future years, within the municipal five-year plan, Reeve Pauline Peddie hopes the Village can replace the sidewalks, she said.

Peddie said that this project has been requested because there are flattened culverts in the area, resulting in accumulating water which is also collecting dirt and debris.

The work will include the construction of a new ditch along the north side of Main Street, and the installation of new entrance culverts. There will also be new open ditching on Church Street. Three centreline culverts will be replaced. Main Street will be resurfaced with hot mix asphalt.

During the work period there will be daytime single-lane closures along Main Street.

The project outline, provided at the open house, assures that the repaving of the road will not result in a rise of the road level.

The design of the ditch also considers the presence of six utility poles, and is being designed so that the ditch does not interfere with the poles.

Krieger also assured that the ditch would be kept as far away from the sidewalks as possible.

Peddie explained that the sidewalk has importance to the Village because it allows safe access for children who wish to use the playground, and also for residents who enjoy walking through the neighbourhood. She noted there are many large vehicles that drive through the community, including transports and large farm vehicles, so it is important to provide residents with a safe area to walk that is not on the highway.

She noted the Frog's Breath Foundation is assisting with the installation of new playground equipment in the park this spring.

"We want the sidewalks so the kids can come and enjoy the park."

Cobalt featured in new TVO series

TORONTO (Special/Staff) – Cobalt is among six communities featured in a new TVO series about small towns facing big changes.

Crossroads: Beyond Boom & Bust looks at six communities – Smiths Falls, Stratford, Napanee, Cobalt, North Buxton and Vankleek Hill – confronting big industrial, social and cultural shifts.

“Many Ontario towns are struggling to adapt to a storm of global pressures, all without losing a sense of their identity,” said John Ferri, TVO vice-president of programming and content, in a news release announcing the new series.

“We hear about this issue every day and there really is hope and an opportunity to thrive,” Ferri continued.

The series is produced in partnership with Alibi Entertainment.

“In each community, we connected with people who are searching for ways to help their communities survive and grow, and in many cases that’s meant taking a completely different approach to the way they do things, whether opening the doors to cannabis or transforming a factory into a 21st century live/work space,” said Heidi Schorn, executive producer and vice-president development for Alibi Entertainment, in the release.

“Every episode gives us a snapshot of the unique challenges each town is facing, and the optimism of the people who are finding a way through.”

Producers introduce the episode on Cobalt, which airs July 4:

“The Silver Rush at the turn of the 20th century drove a population boom in Cobalt, but it came at a high cost with public health disasters and ecological devastation. A disaster in the 1970s shrunk the population to less than 2,000. Prospects are brighter today as resource extraction appears poised to once again be a major employer.”

The weekly series premieres June 13 at 7 p.m. on TVO, TVO Today, YouTube and smart TV services.

Canadian War Museum wants to hear from veterans

OTTAWA (Special) – The Canadian War Museum is launching an ambitious project to preserve the memories and post-war experiences of the country’s veterans and their families.

In Their Own Voices: Stories From Canadian Veterans and Their Families builds on the national museum’s existing collection of oral histories.

“First-hand perspectives are so essential to understanding the impact of military service and conflict,” said Dean Oliver, acting vice-president and director general of the Canadian War Museum, in a news release announcing the initiative.

“We are interested in capturing voices from all conflicts, but this project is particularly urgent given that there are now only 22,000 surviving members of the 1.1 million people in Canada who contributed to the Second World War.”

In Their Own Voices will focus on stories that capture how veterans transitioned back to civilian life. Collecting the viewpoints of family members will also be important.

Together, these perspectives will provide a better understanding of the effects of conflict and service across families and generations.

A future online portal will present audio recordings, photographs and artifact images to the public. Plans for a conference and a book based on the project are also in development.

Veterans and their families interested in being interviewed for this historic collection may visit warmuseum.ca/voices.

Selected oral histories have already been transcribed and PDFs are available online at warmuseum.ca/collections under the search term “In Their Own Voices.”

Traveling internationally and unsure about the requirements?

Vous voyagez à l'étranger et vous n'êtes pas certain des exigences?

Here's where to find the information that you need:

Departing from Canada: You may need to know if your destination requires COVID-19 testing, what kind of test they accept, and if there are any other requirements. This information may be found in English and French on the website of your airline. We also recommend checking the website of your destination country.

Arriving to Canada: Visit the Government of Canada Travel webpage, www.travel.gc.ca. It provides information about testing and quarantine requirements. This includes information about who is exempt from quarantine, what to do if you test positive after you arrive in Canada, and the extra precautions that all travelers to Canada must take for 14 days upon arrival. Note that children aged 5-11 who are unvaccinated and have returned from international travel in the past 14 days must wear a mask in all indoor public settings (including schools), even if exempt from quarantine.

Looking for local resources: The THU webpage www.timiskaminghu.com/90523/Travel-recommendations has been created to provide local resources.

Voici où trouver les informations dont vous avez besoin :

Départ du Canada : Vous devrez peut-être vous informer si votre destination nécessite un test de dépistage de la COVID-19, quel type de test ils acceptent et s'il y a d'autres exigences. Ces renseignements se trouvent en français et en anglais sur le site Web de votre compagnie aérienne. Nous vous recommandons également de consulter le site Web de votre pays de destination.

Arrivée au Canada : Visitez la page Web voyages du gouvernement du Canada, www.travel.gc.ca. Il fournit des informations sur les exigences en matière de tests et de quarantaine. Cela comprend des renseignements sur les personnes exemptées de quarantaine, sur ce qu'il faut faire si vous êtes testé positif après votre arrivée au Canada et sur les précautions supplémentaires que tous les voyageurs à l'arrivée au Canada doivent prendre pendant 14 jours à leur arrivée. Notez que les enfants âgés de 5 à 11 ans qui ne sont pas vaccinés et qui sont revenus d'un voyage international au cours des 14 derniers jours doivent porter un masque dans tous les lieux publics intérieurs (y compris les écoles), même s'ils sont exemptés de quarantaine.

À la recherche de ressources locales : Cette page Web a été créée pour fournir des ressources locales : www.timiskaminghu.com/90523/Recommandations-de-voyage.
