SAND SEARCHER

The 39th annual Gem and Mineral Show held at the Haileybury campus of Northern College on April 20 was a rock lovers paradise. There were rock and mineral displays, jewellery, crafts and kids games available. Antoine Dinel, 7, of Haileybury, was happily searching in a sand box for fossil samples and found one or two. Englehart council discusses pet ownership issues

Darlene Wroe
 Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

ENGLEHART - Englehart council and staff discussed a strategy to address what is becoming a pet ownership issue in the town at their recent committee-of-the-whole meeting.

The April 10 discussion started off with a strategy to encourage people to stoop and scoop their pet waste. An initial proposal was to provide dispensers downtown so that people could take one and remove their pet's waste.

But that suggestion was not favoured because, it was pointed out, in most cases those who would pick up their pet waste already do so. It would also create additional work for the public works staff to replace the receptacles, it was noted.

Mayor Doug Metson remarked on how much dog waste is visible in the downtown area.

"It's unbelievable," he said.

In response, Councillor Jo-Anne Farmer proposed that perhaps the town should set up cameras in order to see who the people are who are leaving their dog waste on the sidewalks.

But she also favoured a campaign to encourage people to pick up their pet waste.

However, community services coordinator Johanna Paradis pointed out that there is a greater problem in the town when it comes to pet ownership.

"We probably need to do a little better job with our animal control."

"I think there are a lot of animal issues in general," she said.

"A campaign is a great idea," but possibly should go beyond cleaning up after pets, she continued.

"Maybe it's a bigger campaign like responsible pet ownership."

Councillor Brian Bockus observed that Englehart should look at having its animal control officer in town more often.

BRH releases first community newsletter

KIRKLAND LAKE (Staff/Special) – The organization that oversees hospitals in Englehart and Kirkland Lake has launched a new tool to communicate with residents.

Blanche River Health (BRH) recently released its first community newsletter.

“The community engagement sessions Blanche River Health hosted last year made it clear our communities want to know what is going on at Blanche River Health,” said Jorge VanSlyke, BRH’s president and CEO, in a media release.

“The engagement sessions also highlighted the importance of communicating with the public in different formats, because a lot of people do not use computers or smart phones. That’s why we are publishing a digital and hard copy version of the newsletter.”

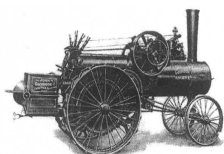

The inaugural issue offers updates on recruitment and staffing, the 48-hour closure of the emergency department at the Englehart site in early March, the purchase of two non-urgent patient transfer vehicles, and fundraising for cardiac care equipment.

The newsletter will be published at least twice a year.

It’s available on the BRH website, at www.blancheriverhealth.ca, and the hospital’s Facebook page.

Anyone who wishes to receive a printed copy can be added to the mailing list by calling BRH at 1-866-274-7774 ext. 3126 or emailing communications@blancheriverhealth.ca.

Step into Spring! Walking for health

With warmer weather arriving, many of us are looking to get outside and walk more. The health benefits of walking are endless, and experts agree that by adding walking to your routine, you can improve not only your physical health, but your mental health as well!

The key is to walk, ideally, for at least 30 minutes per day. Walking has tremendous benefits, from supporting a healthy immune system to boosting your metabolism to strengthening your joints, muscles, and bones. It's also amazing for stress relief!

1. Walking will improve your mood

Research shows that just 10 minutes of walking can lift your spirits.

2. It will help you burn calories and maintain a healthy weight

Regular walking can help reduce belly fat and, as a result, improve your body's response to insulin. Daily walking increases metabolism by burning extra calories and by preventing muscle loss, which is especially important as we get older.

3. Walking can alleviate joint pain

Contrary to what you might think, walking can help improve your range of motion and mobility because it helps strengthen the muscles surrounding your joints. Research shows that walking for at least 10 minutes a day, or about an hour every week, can reduce arthritis pain in older adults.

4. Walking can delay the onset of varicose veins

As we age, our risk of varicose veins increases. Walking is a proven way to prevent them from developing. If you already suffer from varicose veins, daily walking can help ease related swelling and restlessness in your legs.

5. Walking can improve your sleep

Studies have found that healthy adults who walk daily have a significant positive impact on sleep quality and length of sleep.

Committed to keeping you as healthy as possible!

Celebrating hockey

It was a wonderful weekend of hockey in Temiskaming Shores April 19-21 as the Pedersen Construction U13A Puckhounds hosted the five-team Ontario Hockey Federation Championship.

Congratulations to Shelly Zubyck and her organizing team for pulling off such a terrific event, showcasing the welcoming hospitality of our region.

The arena was packed with spectators all weekend long watching some terrific hockey being played.

The Puckhounds were defeated in the semifinal game on Sunday morning by the eventual tournament winners, the Brantford 99ers.

Pedersens left it all on the ice and their play during the weekend was stellar, against the best teams in the province and against the number one ranked team in their division, the 99ers.

City of Temiskaming Shores Mayor Jeff Laferriere spoke at the opening ceremonies on Friday night saying the players should thank their parents, coaches and the greater community for supporting them in their hockey journey.

And he was correct. The sport of hockey is about community, from the generous sponsors who stepped forward to support the OHF, to the coaches, the parents who support their children and the Temiskaming Shores Minor Hockey Association, made up of dedicated individuals giving their time and talents to help kids be better human beings through sport.

Sport can be one of the highlights of a child's life.

Minor hockey isn't just about learning how to play the game, it is about life lessons.

Being humble in victory and gracious in defeat and kids having fun together.

And it is about thanking the volunteers whenever possible.

Sticks up to all the minor hockey teams in our region.

Stepping on nails

Sue Nielsen

I am often at the scene of some traumatic events in the region.

It's part of the job of being a newspaper reporter.

I have never used a disguise to hide my identity, gone through someone's trash or stood in front of a bereaved person demanding answers to questions.

But I know some people who do that.

There is a trust that has to be developed between police, EMS, fire departments and average citizens by the media when covering sensitive and traumatic events.

I have learned over the years to tread lightly with people who have been victimized by crime and tragic circumstances.

Last week a man was swept away by flood waters in Moose Creek in Casey Township.

I was at the Blanche River where police had set up a temporary command post at Judge Park, along Highway 65 East.

When I arrived I saw the police vehicles and I noticed members of the man's family huddled together.

It was not my intention to speak to the family members, but rather to get the facts from the police officers.

A family member did tell me a few things about the incident.

When I got back to the office

I received a phone call from another family member asking that I not divulge any information on the missing person.

I reassured her that I would do no such thing as I felt those comments were off-the-record.

But while we were waiting at the office for police reports I noticed a Facebook page had posted information about the missing person.

And they actually named the individual when police and the family had requested it not be publicized for privacy reasons.

There are those whose sole purpose is to sit on computers all day long passing on information about tragic events.

Often this information is far from accurate and can cause people unnecessary trauma.

It is my intention to act with empathy towards people who are undergoing extreme emotional trauma.

People may not realize how trauma can affect even the media.

I have been yelled at, sworn at and threatened simply for doing my job.

There are some events that I have covered that haunt me to this day.

I will never forget the image of a young man who had been killed by a train a few years ago near Earlton.

It stays with me constantly and I have cried about it.

The issue of post traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) is real and anyone who is or has dealt with this condition is a hero in my books.

PTSD is found among soldiers, police, medics, firefighters, court workers and others.

Trauma, when not addressed can feel like stepping on nails every day.

My heartfelt condolences go out to the family of the man whose body has since been found.

HMREC conducts annual nest box cleaning

Sue Nielsen

Speaker Reporter

HILLIARDTON — Spring cleaning at the Hilliardton Marsh Research and Education Centre (HMREC) is really for the birds.

Cleaning out tree swallow boxes might not be an activity that many people have undertaken, but it is a necessary activity to ensure returning birds have places to nest and raise their young.

On April 20, several volunteers showed up at the Marsh to help conduct the annual spring cleaning of tree swallow nesting boxes.

Tree swallows, Eastern blue birds and house wrens are soon to return to the Boreal forest during the spring migration and the nesting boxes must be cleaned prior to their arrival.

The female tree swallow builds a nest of grasses lined with duck feathers.

She will lay between four and seven eggs in a clutch, then both parents take turns feeding the birds until they fledge from the nest about 21 days later.

HMREC bird bander Bruce Murphy told the volunteers the boxes have to be cleaned out so the birds can start fresh each year. The volunteers recorded information such as the number of the nesting box they were at and what they found inside it.

Old nesting material may contain parasites like mites so it is important to clear old nesting materials from the boxes.

Putting up nesting boxes is an easy way to support backyard birds, but they must be the kind that can be opened for cleaning each year.

Murphy said plans on tree swallow nesting boxes are on the internet for people who may want to build their own boxes.

“Tree swallows use feathers to build nests, while Eastern blue birds don’t, so this is how one might figure out what species of bird has nested in the boxes,” said Murphy.

Former conservation officer Pete Gilboe, an avid hunter, provides the Marsh with duck feathers.

The duck feathers are left in open spaces around the marsh so nesting birds may access them.

“I have seen tree swallows fighting over one duck feather, so it is important that they have enough feathers to build their nests,” said Murphy.

Murphy noted the number of tree swallows, or insectivorous birds species (birds that consume insects), has been on a steep decline in recent years.

Swallows can consume up to 1,000 insects per day so providing artificial nesting boxes is an important habitat for the birds.

SECONDARY CAVITY NESTERS

Because tree swallows and Eastern blue birds are secondary cavity nesters, they benefit from nest boxes, said Murphy.

They can be in competition for nesting sites with the European house sparrow, which many consider an invasive species.

He noted birds like woodpeckers are primary cavity builders but the availability of holes in trees made by these birds does not often meet the need for nesting sights of many bird species.

The Marsh has installed over 100 nest boxes across the Temiskaming region that they maintain each year.

People visiting the Marsh last Saturday could also view Marsh bird bander Jacob Lachapelle band several common grackles.

Around the marsh there are nest boxes for tree swallows, ducks and owls.

Hitting the ATV trails, safely

OTTAWA (Special) – In an effort to reduce injuries and fatalities amongst young ATV riders, a group of industry players recently joined forces to launch online rider safety training for youth.

Ready to RideON is an Ontario Quad Safety Council program, developed in partnership with the Ontario Federation of All Terrain Vehicle Clubs (OFATV), Yamaha Motor Canada, and Bombardier Recreational Products (BRP)

“ATV riding is not just a fun activity for young riders who get a taste of independence and freedom on the trails, but it’s a necessity for some youth who rely on the machines for farm work or transportation, particularly in rural areas,” said Shari Black, executive director of the OFATV, in a news release announcing the new initiative.

“We know that helping these young riders build confidence and skills is key to mitigating accidents across the province. As a group of industry leaders, we felt compelled to build programming that would do just that.”

ATV riding is increasing in popularity in Ontario, particularly as weather patterns change and trails become accessible for longer periods throughout the year.

At this time, youth aged 12 to 15 are allowed to ride on trails in Ontario and no rider training or rider safety education is required.

But the federation notes that ATVs – which can weigh more than 600 pounds and travel at more than 100 kilometres per hour – pose a serious risk to inexperienced riders and the people around them.

It said SickKids reported 181 cases of serious and/or fatal ATV-related injuries, including six deaths, in 2018. Children aged 10 to 14 represented nearly half (45.3 per cent) of all cases.

The SickKids study also revealed that the likelihood of injury and death on ATVs is lower in provinces where safety training is legislated for youth, demonstrating the importance of programs like Ready to RideON.

The federation noted that vigilance around ATV use should not be limited to youth.

It cited data from the Ontario Provincial Police that showed that 151 people died and more than 1,500 suffered ATV or side-by-side injuries between 2016 and 2022.

Loss of control is the number one cause of accidents.

Ready to RideON is a $40, two-hour online program designed for 12- to 15-year-olds in Ontario.

HOROSCOPE

WEEK OF APRIL 28 TO MAY 4, 2024

The luckiest signs this week:
Pisces, Aries and Taurus

March 21 - April 19

ARIES It can take a lot of work to strike the right work-life balance. You'll have to juggle your schedule to balance work and family responsibilities without disappointing your nearest and dearest, who could be rather demanding.

April 20 - May 20

TAURUS You might go on a spontaneous romantic trip this week. You'll need to take a step back to make a difficult decision and sort out your thoughts so you can confidently move forward. Don't forget to incorporate some fun into your daily routine.

May 21 - June 21

GEMINI You may need to re-evaluate some of your friendships this week. Some of your friends may return the money they owe you, which could help ease some tension.

June 22 - July 22

CANCER An error in an invoice will require your attention. You may have to devote time to rectifying the situation and obtaining the appropriate reimbursement. Sometimes, you must take action to correct even the slightest injustice.

July 23 - August 22

LEO Your efforts to be healthier will be rewarded by an appropriate treatment or a new diet offering visible results. You're on the right track to improve your physical and mental well-being.

August 23 - September 22

VIRGO You'll be surprised by a sudden increase in popularity with your clients and on social media. If you're single, you'll also notice that people compete for your attention.

September 23 - October 22

LIBRA Your family will be top of mind this week. Your nearest and dearest could be asking for more attention than usual. You may plan to move if you're no longer comfortable in your home.

October 23 - November 21

SCORPIO Travel is becoming more complicated, and communication isn't always clear. Your directness and honesty will significantly impact your colleagues or social life. You don't waste time beating around the bush, and although some people may be offended, it's how you maintain your peace of mind.

November 22 - December 21

SAGITTARIUS You may face some financial issues this week, but don't worry. You can resolve these problems by confronting them directly. Take some time to relax and indulge in some self-care.

December 22 - January 19

CAPRICORN You may face some delays at work this week. Take some time to slow down instead of getting anxious. Focus your efforts to work more efficiently and complete your tasks on time.

January 20 - February 18

AQUARIUS You might have to cover for an absent colleague at work, which could cause some stress. However, this could lead to a promotion in the future.

February 19 - March 20

PISCES You'll have to speak in front of an audience or on social media. You'll feel a certain satisfaction after receiving positive feedback. However, some people will disagree with you, so be prepared to face criticism, too.

Albert Street Reconstruction Project | April 29, 2024

Haileybury Residents. Please be advised, the Albert Street Reconstruction Project is set to begin again on April 29th, 2024.

Please be cautious in the area around construction workers and plan for road closures along the road. The anticipated completion date is not yet known. We thank everyone for their cooperation. 2024 construction is upon us!

Half Load Restrictions in Effect

March 6, 2024 until June 30, 2024, unless indicated otherwise.

When half-load restrictions are in effect, a road is off-limits to vehicles exceeding 5 tonnes per axle. However, there may be alternate routes that can be taken to reach a destination.

Why

Roads become softer and weaker during the spring thaw. Heavy vehicle traffic on these roadways can cause permanent damage. Following the half-load restrictions reduces the potential for any unnecessary road repairs or reconstruction.

Street Sweeping and Spring Clean-up

The annual spring clean-up includes sweeping all paved roads and some hard surfaces, to remove debris and materials that have accumulated throughout the winter season and could pose dangers to motorists, pedestrians/cyclists as well as clogging up catch basins and inlets.

Residents are asked to help crews clean the city by not parking vehicles on the streets while street sweeping activities are being conducted in the area. Typical hours of operations are Monday to Friday, between 6:30am and 3:00pm beginning in April (weather dependent). Hours of operation may also vary depending on the location that needs to be swept.

Hydrant Flushing is conducted semi-annually as part of the Water Maintenance Program. These operations are carried out typically in April and October of each year.

During this time customers may experience discolored water. If you do, it would be advisable to refrain from doing laundry or using hot water until the water clears. The Public Works Operations Staff makes every effort to maintain the designated schedule. Your co-operation is appreciated.

Further information will be provided about Hydrant Flushing.

Two household items that can be dangerous

(NC) - You probably don't read the label of everything that enters your home, and there are likely a few items in your home that you may not realize are dangerous. Below are two items you should know about to keep your home safe.

BATTERIES – A BURN AND FIRE RISK

Lithium batteries are in many everyday devices, from cellphones to toys to power tools.

While there are many safety standards for them, these lightweight, long-lasting power sources can be dangerous if they are not made, stored or handled properly. In fact, according to federal regulations they are classified as dangerous goods.

To avoid chemical burns, fires or explosions, make sure to only buy batteries from reputable brands and retailers and avoid aftermarket or third-party batteries. Third-party lithium batteries can be of poor quality or counterfeit and have been shown to lead to more fires.

Keep batteries out of reach of children and supervise playtime to prevent kids from swallowing small cell batteries found in many children's toys.

AEROSOLS – A RISK OF EXPLOSION

You may already know that aerosol canisters will explode if heated. But you might be surprised by how many day-to-day products come in these canisters.

In addition to hairspray, you can find cooking oils, sunscreens, perfumes, air fresheners and cleaning products in these pressurized cans. Think about how many you might have in your house while you're out shopping.

If you buy a product that comes in an aerosol canister, be sure to store it away from heat according to the manufacturer's instructions.

Just like lithium batteries, products in aerosol canisters are classified as dangerous goods by Transport Canada. This means that they require a special shipping label when being transported or shipped.

If you have to return these products through the mail, make sure that the package includes the appropriate dangerous goods shipping label.

These labels are required for all packages carrying items classified as dangerous goods. You can find more information about the regulations at tc.canada.ca/en/dangerous-goods.

How to deal with an emergency in your new home

(NC) - If you own a newly built home, you probably don't expect it to get you into an emergency, but it can and does happen.

Fortunately, the warranty that is on every new-build home in Ontario provides coverage against emergencies that can be traced back to your builder's work and materials.

Knowing how you're covered and what to do when a major problem strikes will save you a lot of stress and help you quickly get your home back to normal.

EMERGENCIES COVERED BY YOUR WARRANTY

Under the new-home warranty, an emergency is a situation that occurs during the warranty period and involves a warranted defect that, if not attended to immediately, would cause substantial damage to your house, condo unit or condo common elements. It may also be something that can pose a risk to your health and safety or make your home uninhabitable.

Examples of emergency situations include:

- A complete loss of heat between September 15 and May 15
- A gas leak
- A complete loss of electricity
- A complete loss of water
- Complete stoppage of sewage disposal
- A plumbing leak that requires the entire water supply to be shut off
- Major collapse of any part of the home's exterior or interior structure
- Water penetration through the interior walls or ceiling
- A pool of standing water inside the home
- Presence of unacceptable levels of hazardous substances inside the home, such as radon or mould

How to deal with an emergency in your new home

These types of emergencies do not include situations caused by failures of municipal or utility services, or other situations that are not within your builder's control.

WHAT TO DO IN AN EMERGENCY

If you have an emergency that's covered by the warranty contact your builder, who then has up to 24 hours to resolve the issue by making your home safe and preventing any further damage.

If you can't reach your builder or they don't resolve the emergency within this time, you can call the consumer protection organization Tarion. Their role is to ensure homeowners receive the warranty protection you're entitled to, and to hold builders accountable when they fail to meet their obligations. The organization can step in to resolve your claim when your builder can't or won't.

And what to do if you can't reach either? In this case, you can get a professional to do the repair work necessary to correct only the emergency (but not the defect that caused it). Keep records of the emergency and repair work completed, such as receipts and photographs taken before and after the repair so that your builder can reimburse you for the cost. Once the initial emergency is resolved, your builder has 30 days to complete a full repair of the defect.

COMING TO NORTHERN ONTARIO

Northern Ontario residents can expect to receive their 2024 War Amps key tags in the mail starting this week. Each key tag has a confidentially coded number. If you lose your keys, the finder can call the toll-free number on the back of the tag or place them in any mailbox, and The War Amps will return them to you by courier, free of charge. The War Amps receives no government grants. With the public's support of the key tag service, the National Council of Veteran Associations says it's making a difference in the lives of amputees, including children, by providing financial help for the cost of artificial limbs, peer support and information on all aspects of living with amputation. Anyone who does not receive their key tags in the mail can order them at waramps.ca or call toll-free 1-800-250-3030. (Supplied photo)
