Pilot project reducing waste lines

Diane Johnston
Speaker Reporter

TEMISKAMING SHORES – A little machine has earned big praise from city residents who took part in a food waste reduction pilot project.

A total of 154 residents of Temiskaming Shores purchased FoodCycler units earlier this year.

The electricity-powered devices convert leftovers and food scraps into a dry, sterile, odourless by-product that can be added to the garden.

Over a 12-week period, participants tracked their usage.

The results were summarized by Brittany Clarke, municipal program manager at Ottawa-based Food Cycle Science, when city council met July 9.

Participants used on average 0.7 fewer bags of garbage per week.

Over the course of the year, that would translate into 37.4 fewer bags of garbage per participating household, and 40 million tonnes of food waste diverted from the landfill.

In the company's analysis, the 154 units would divert 52 metric tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalents, a measure of greenhouse gases.

That equates to the carbon that would be sequestered by almost 61 acres of forest in a year.

Seventy-four per cent of survey respondents reported they are also now more motivated to reduce their food waste.

"So the awareness that comes with this program is very important," Clarke said.

DID YOU GET The Speaker THIS WEEK?

Here are some of the stories in our July 17 edition...

- North On Tap had the hot weather on its side as thirsty attendees drank up a day of beer, spirits, food and fun.
- The Temagami Fire Department has a new set of battery-operated jaws for life used in vehicle mishaps.
- The City of Temiskaming Shores has adopted a traffic study that would change how traffic and people move in the city.
- The City of Temiskaming Shores has given the North On Tap Friday Family Night event $5,000 to help cover costs.
- A boat parade from New Liskeard to Haileybury over the July long weekend floated $1,300 towards the Temiskaming Hospital Foundation.
- Last weekend's heat wave did not deter people from taking part in the Hop To It Run/Walk along the STATO trail.
- Special Olympics athletes had success at the Jack Lyons Memorial Track Meet on June 22.
- The first ever Colour Run is being held Saturday, July 20, beginning from the Waterfront Pool Fitness Centre.

DRINKING IN THE ATMOSPHERE

Pilot project reducing waste lines

The numbers based on just 154 participants are "really impressive," commented Councillor Danny Whalen.

Given that there are more than 4,800 homes in the city, Whalen said the impact of the units on the landfill could be significant.

Participants paid $150 or $300 for a unit, depending on its size.

The overall cost was subsidized by the city, at $100 per unit. The retail price for the pilot project was further offset by federal support.

The city was originally going to buy only 100 units, but increased the number in light of public demand.

After the meeting, Mayor Jeff Laferriere said the scale of the project "really did give us a good sample size."

Based on the cost-benefit analysis for the city, "clearly it is having a positive impact," he said.

He said city staff will take a further look at the project and have some more discussions with the company.

The city may be able to put in some funds to expand the units' use if it can expect that level of return, he said.

Elder Abuse Awareness

Elder Abuse is one of the most underreported crimes in Canada affecting hundreds of thousands of people every year.

Elder abuse comes in many forms:

- Psychological abuse in the form of threats, insults, or humiliation
- Financial abuse in which a trusted individual steals or misuses an elderly person's money, forges their signature, or pressures them to make or change legal documents. An example might be sharing an older person's home without paying a fair share of the expenses when requested.
- Physical abuse such as hitting, pushing, or restraining an elderly person
- Sexual abuse including sexual harassment and non-consensual sexual activity
- Neglect of an elderly person who requires care. Seniors most vulnerable to neglect, include those who are socially isolated and those with serious health conditions.

The truth is elder abuse is any action taken by someone in a relationship of trust with an elderly person that causes harm or distress.

People can engage in abusive behaviour without realizing it. Sometimes seemingly innocent or well-meaning actions cross the line. For example, someone might open an older relative's mail to save them stress of bill-paying, but if done without the elderly person's permission, that breach of privacy could be a form of psychological abuse. A caregiver who gives more than the prescribed dosage of medication to keep an elderly patient calm could be engaging in physical abuse.

There is no definitive list of everything elder abuse is and is not. We must be mindful of how elder abuse can take on different forms and be cautious of how our actions could cause harm.

Make sure to listen to your elderly parents, friends, or other family members and take their concerns seriously. If you suspect abuse, report it immediately to health care providers, social services, police, legal professionals and/or members of faith communities.

If you are an elder who is being abused, neglected, or exploited, tell at least one person. Tell your doctor, a friend, or a family member whom you trust. Other people care and can help you.

Where's the health care roadmap?

The premier of Ontario, Doug Ford, and his government, have published on the internet an interactive map showing the location of accessible outlets where alcohol can be bought.

This comes in the wake of the strike at the publicly owned LCBO, where unionized workers are on the picket lines in that organization's first strike in 97 years.

The LCBO workers are opposed to Ford's plan to expand the sale of booze to corner stores and big box stores.

How about the Ford government create a map on the internet where individuals and families can access a family doctor?

Or how about the Ford government put an interactive map out there of accessible emergency room departments where people don't have to wait upwards of 10 hours to see a doctor?

And how about the Ford government create a map showing all the places where mental health and addiction services can be found?

And while the province is in the middle of a housing crisis, how about the government create a map of where affordable housing can be found in this province, rather than a bottle of booze?

Of course health care seems to be less of a priority to the Ford government than the sale and promotion of alcohol in this province.

How long is the wait time for mental health patients to access treatment in our region?

And surely given the fact that Northern Ontario has the highest rates of opioid usage in the province, where is the map showing the location of treatment centres where people may get help for their addiction?

Is the Ford government trying to destroy public health care so people will have no choice but to access private health care?

Increasing alcohol consumption will only place added pressures on our already overburdened health care system.

Just look at the rise in drunk driving in the Temiskaming region to understand we need a government that understands health care and understands the need for education surrounding alcohol consumption.

While schools need fixing and many people can't afford rent and food, Ford's priority is booze.

How much of our hard earned taxpayer dollars did it cost to create that interactive map of locations selling booze?

Family secrets

Sue Nielsen

For years she was a Canadian literary icon, winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature in 2013.

We all boasted about her, we loved her, worshipped her wit and adored her skill at writing short stories.

We read what she wrote about ordinary women but we didn't know she had a daughter who had been sexually abused by her stepfather, the writer's husband.

Alice Munro's daughter, Andrea Robin Skinner, recently came out with stunning allegations of sexual assault against her stepfather.

And apparently, according to Skinner, when she told the adults in her life, her father and mother, they ignored her.

So in effect, they enabled a pedophile to abuse her.

This is why children need to be believed when they tell stories of sexual abuse.

When people don't believe children about sexual abuse the perpetrators are given a free pass to continue their evil ways.

The pressure on children to keep quiet about the abuse can and has ruined lives.

It is every adult's duty to protect children from harm.

The majority of abusers are people who are known to the victim.

The important takeaway from this horrible story is: when your child tells you someone has sexually abused them, believe them. Then call police.

The shock of knowing your partner or family member has done something like that can be devastating.

There may come feelings of denial, but for the sake of the child, believe their stories and protect them from further abuse.

I will not open the pages of an Alice Munro book again.

This is where ethics come into play because I feel it is unethical to support people who have abused children or looked the other way when it was being carried out.

When Woody Allen became involved with his stepdaughter, I could not watch a single movie he had been in after that.

And when rapper Chris Brown beat up his then girlfriend, singer Rihanna, I knew I would never purchase or listen to another Chris Brown song ever again.

My moral compass stays steady when I hear about people who abuse children and women.

But isn't society complicit in the abuse of children? "Oh, she's lying, she's crazy, she dressed provocatively." Meanwhile, Munro's daughter was a nine-year-old girl.

I think we all need to take a long hard look at how we treat victims in this country. And if we are silent about sexual assault, we are complicit.

We often downplay the harshness of these acts by saying "oh he was a good guy but he made a mistake."

Parents and caregivers must do everything in their power to nurture and protect children.

First 3D printing contest makes an impression

TIMMINS (Special) – What can you make with a 3D printer?

Winning creations from high school students in Temiskaming and Cochrane included an action figure and a swivelling desk clamp.

Students from 10 high schools, from Temiskaming Shores to Hearst, took part in Northern College’s first-ever 3D printing competition.

The contest began in March when students submitted project concept descriptions to Northern College for evaluation. Prototypes were then printed at each high school using Bambu Lab P1S 3D printers donated by the college.

In May, final prototypes were produced at the 3D printing lab at Northern’s Timmins campus. Entries were evaluated based on originality, complexity, and functionality or artistic expression.

The winner in the creative category was Andrew Cull of Timiskaming District Secondary School.

Cull created an articulated hydra dragon model with moveable knees, legs and hands.

The model can “dynamically move and be posed as desired,” said Cull in a media release.

The winner in the functional category was James Buller of Englehart High School, who designed a clamp that can be affixed to a desk and used to hide a garbage can.

“It can swivel to bring the garbage can out to throw out trash on your desk easily,” said Buller.

“I made this clamp because my desk is dirty, and this would make it super easy to keep it clean.”

The winners each received a Bambu Lab A1 Mini 3D printer.

Englehart High School students also figured among the eight students named runners-up. Each received a custom-engraved Yeti mug.

Englehart recipients in the creative category were Nicholas Sikkema (an ’80s-style beach), Hailey Field (ocean scene) and Devon Hayes (camper).

Englehart High School recipients in the functional category were Aaron Mowbray (drawers) and Madison Heavens (black projector).

“We are incredibly proud of all the participants,” said Keith Deslaurier, Northern’s applied research, entrepreneur and innovation research officer.

“Their innovative designs and technical abilities demonstrate the tremendous potential of these young minds. Events like these are vital for fostering creativity and problem-solving skills among students.”

The awards were presented June 3 at the Timmins campus.

HOROSCOPE

WEEK OF
JULY 21 TO 27, 2024

THE LUCKIEST SIGNS THIS WEEK:
ARIES, TAURUS AND GEMINI

ARIES

You may need to speak up to be heard among those close to you. Afterward, you may feel tired. Resting and taking a step back this week is a good idea.

TAURUS

This week, you'll be flooded with responsibilities. Time will be of the essence. Even if you're on holiday, you must manage your time to ensure you do and see everything you planned.

GEMINI

A spontaneous getaway or holiday trip will make you very happy. You might even consider returning to school to start a more exciting career.

CANCER

Strong emotions often indicate a need for change. After a deep cleaning and a bit of effort, you'll reset your priorities and feel happy again.

LEO

You're good at negotiating, which will help you professionally and personally. You might find some great deals while shopping. You'll be able to resolve conflicts easily.

VIRGO

You'll be busy this week, whether at work or home. You must pay attention to every detail to keep everyone happy, even if you're on vacation.

LIBRA

You'll be in the spotlight this week. People will be interested in everything you say, and you'll feel proud. Expect applause!

SCORPIO

You'll spend some of the week improving your home and hosting a family member. This will improve your quality of life and environment.

SAGITTARIUS

You'll travel far to join your family on a holiday that will meet your expectations. You won't compromise on anything to maximize your free time.

CAPRICORN

Although RSVPs to an activity have been slow, everyone will show up. Summer might even inspire you to start a new career.

AQUARIUS

You'll be in the mood for partying and having fun instead of working. You'll be promoted, which will make you very happy. You'll enjoy your holidays to the fullest.

PISCES

You'll have a lot to do this week, yet some things may seem confusing. Take some time to think before you act. Your overflowing imagination will help you create something amazing.

Sphero Battle Bots

Registered participants shall construct their own battle bot and take turns against one another to determine the day's sphero battle bot champion. Using the minimum of the supplied items, participants will use their creativity to create a functioning "shell" for their sphero mini to act as their battle bot. This shell must be able to steer easily with the sphero mini without tipping over. The shell must also allow a balloon to be easily attached to the back that they must defend. The goal for each participant will be to attempt to pop your opponent's balloon before they pop yours. Last one standing wins.

TDSRC Junior Program

The Temiskaming Shores Public Library is very happy to be participating in the TD Summer Reading Club again this summer. Your child can register for our in person programs weekly here at the library but they'll also have the opportunity to participate on line from home to track their reading, play games and make new friends from across the country.

TDSRC Jr. Space Walk Challenge

The Temiskaming Shores Public Library will be having a TDSRC Jr. Space Walk Challenge program. This is for children aged 4 to 7 years but we are flexible. This is going to be a fun challenge for all who attend!

Sticking to tick protection

TORONTO (Special) – As the hot summer continues, the Ontario government is encouraging people to take precautions to prevent tick bites and reduce the risk of contracting Lyme disease and other tick-borne diseases.

In a news release, it warned that being bitten by an infected black-legged tick, commonly called a deer tick, can lead to potentially serious infections, including Lyme disease and other diseases.

If you have any symptoms such as fever, headache, chills, muscle and joint pain, fatigue and an expanding circular rash that resembles a bulls-eye, consult a health care provider as soon as possible.

Since 2021, there have been almost 5,000 cases of Lyme disease, 17 cases of anaplasmosis, and 10 cases of babesiosis in Ontario.

"Blacklegged ticks are continuing to spread to new areas of the province, but by being proactive, we can combat the risk they pose and safely enjoy the beauty of Ontario over the coming months," said Deputy Premier and Health Minister Sylvia Jones.

If you are living, working, visiting, or enjoying outdoor activities in a wooded area, or an area with tall grass and bushes (including city gardens and parks) you are at greater risk of being bitten by a tick.

You can protect yourself from tick bites by:

- Wearing light-coloured clothing, so it's easier to spot ticks.
- Wearing long-sleeved shirts, long pants tucked into your socks, closed-toed shoes, or any special clothing designed to repel ticks.
- Applying insect repellent containing DEET or icaridin on your exposed skin and your clothes.
- Checking yourself, your children, and your pets for ticks after being outdoors. Any ticks found should be removed promptly.
- Putting your clothes on high heat in a dryer for at least 10 minutes before washing them, after spending time outdoors.

Ticks are very small and hard to see.

When found a tick should be removed immediately using fine-tipped tweezers to grasp the tick as close to your skin as possible without crushing it.

Once you have removed a tick, wash your skin with soap and water and then disinfect your skin and your hands with rubbing alcohol or an iodine swab.

Before disposing of the tick, call or check the website of your local public health unit to get advice on how to identify the tick.

You can also submit a photo of the tick to etick.ca for identification.

"As areas where ticks can be found continue to grow, so too do the risks of tick bites and tick-borne diseases," said Dr. Kieran Moore, Ontario's chief medical officer of health.

"By being vigilant, wearing appropriate clothing and doing routine tick checks, we can avoid tick bites and ensure our trips outside are safe and healthy, in the months ahead."

If you have any health concerns after a tick bite, consult a health care provider as soon as possible.

Most cases of Lyme disease can be treated successfully with antibiotics, and pharmacists have been able to prescribe medication to treat tick bites to prevent Lyme disease since January 1, 2023.

For more information on ticks and tick-borne diseases visit Ontario.ca/ticks.
