Harley Township reviewing draft official plan

Darlene Wroe
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

HARLEY TOWNSHIP - Harley Township council and staff are continuing their process to put a new official plan in place.

The document is currently in its draft stage, and was presented to council at the township's regular meeting August 13.

Council is currently reviewing the plan in order to provide notes to planner David Welwood of J.L. Richards who is based in Sudbury.

Welwood spoke to council virtually at the August 13 meeting.

He was seeking council's approval to send the draft official plan to the Ontario Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing for their comment.

Welwood noted the ministry review could take some time.

A public meeting will take place after the ministry has provided its comment.

Council agreed to accept the verbal report of Welwood, and has printed the document so that the members of council and staff can review the draft together and provide notes to Welwood to be incorporated.

Harley Township clerk-treasurer Krystle Seymour later explained in an email that the official plan describes policies on how the land should be used,

POKÉMON BOARDWALK

Landon Ryan-Livingston, 7, was taking aim to capture all 20 Pokémon characters along the New Liskeard boardwalk and STATO trail August 22, while his brother Oliver, 8, stood by waiting his turn. They were being taken along the path by their mother Krystin Livingston and grandmother Ruth Ryan. The City of Temiskaming Shores hosted the event August 22, 23 and 24 in partnership with the Timiskaming Health Unit. Active travel programmer Mary-Jaye Ethier created the activity. She said she enjoys playing Pokémon Go on her phone and decided to turn it into a real-life activity. The objective was to find 20 Pokémon cutouts along the shore, toss a bean bag through the hole in the cutout, colour in the sheet to show which one you got, and then return for a prize. Anxiety in Children

Does any of this sound like your child or teen?

- Clinging, crying and/or tantrums when you separate
- Excessive shyness, avoiding social situations
- Constant worry
- Avoiding situations or places because of fears
- Complaints of frequent stomach aches or headaches
- Experiencing sudden and frequent panic attacks

If you answered yes to any of these statements your child may be experiencing anxiety.

As a parent of an anxious child, you are not alone. Anxiety is one of the most common mental health concerns for children and adults, affecting upwards of 20% of children and adolescents over the lifespan. Anxious youth are often quiet and well behaved, and thus frequently go unnoticed by their parents, teachers, and coaches. Alternatively, others can be disruptive and act out, being labeled as having attention deficit disorder or being a “bad” kid. Both scenarios result in children failing to receive the help they desperately need. Sadly, untreated anxiety can lead to depression, missed opportunities in career and relationships, increased substance use, and a decreased quality of life.

Pointers for Helping Children Escape the Cycle of Anxiety

- The goal is not to eliminate anxiety, but to help a child manage it

The best way to help kids overcome anxiety isn't to try to remove stressors that trigger it. It's to help them learn to tolerate their anxiety and function as well as they can, even when they're anxious.

- Don't avoid things just because they make a child anxious

Helping children avoid the things they are afraid of will make them feel better in the short term, but it reinforces the anxiety over the long run. If a child in an uncomfortable situation gets upset, starts to cry and the parents whisk them out of there, or remove the thing the child is afraid of, they learn that coping mechanism, and that cycle has the potential to repeat itself.

- Express positive but realistic expectations

You can't promise children that their fears are unrealistic, but you can express confidence that they are going to be okay, they will be able to manage it, and that, as they face their fears, the anxiety level will drop over time. This gives them confidence that your expectations are realistic, and that you're not going to ask them to do something they can't handle.

Whose convenience?

The Ontario Ford government will make the sale of beer, cider and ready-to-drink beverages available September 5.

As of October 31, all eligible grocery and big box stores will be able to sell beer, cider, wine and ready-to-drink beverages, including large-pack sizes.

"In the coming weeks and months, people in Ontario, like many Canadians across the country, will have the option to responsibly and conveniently purchase a case of beer or a bottle of wine on their way up to the cottage or to a summer barbecue, all while having even more opportunity to support local Ontario breweries and wineries," said Premier Ford.

The premier has justified this move by saying it will be a more competitive marketplace and it will improve choice for consumers while creating economic growth for local retailers.

Businesses who wanted to become outlets for booze had to apply for a permit beginning on June 17.

Does the premier not understand there is a housing crisis, a homelessness crisis and an affordability crisis in the province for a good many Ontarians?

Ontarians who don't have the luxury of zipping up Highway 400 to their luxury cottages in the Muskokas with a case of beer or wine in their Tesla.

It's all fine and dandy for the premier to provide more access to booze for his wealthy friends and supporters, but the stark reality is, Ontarians are experiencing tough times.

The high price of gasoline, groceries and rent is forcing some people onto the streets.

We know we have a homelessness crisis in the province and in our region as well.

In the world we live in there are millions of dollars being handed out for electric-vehicle battery plants, but what is being doled out for addiction services, an over-burdened health care system, mental health treatment and homeless shelters in our opulent province?

Doug Ford's push to make alcohol more available to Ontarians could quite possibly cost millions more in health costs from expanded alcohol sales.

Who is going to monitor the thousands of corner stores so they don't sell alcohol to children?

We have to wonder how many more drunk driving incidents, addiction and domestic violence cases there will be in our communities.

Who is paying for the nurses, social workers and police that will be needed to clean up the ills from increased booze availability?

A more humane world

Sue Nielsen

I saw an elderly person wandering the streets the other day and they appeared to be lost.

I was reminded of a neighbour I once knew who had dementia.

They would forget pots on the stove and wander around town and not know how to get back home.

This man was often berated for mixing up his words or forgetting where he lived.

On more than one occasion he was left alone to manage his affairs and clearly he needed help.

He had worked all his life in the mines in Cobalt and raised a sizeable family.

He was a good man, a kind man and a gentle man.

Perhaps his family didn't want to think of their father as having dementia and needing help.

The old adage being: it's too close to home. Dementia was perhaps too close to home for his family and/or friends.

He had become messy and his memory became blurry.

How hurtful it must be to look at your loved one and they do not remember who you are.

I wanted to shout out and tell people that dementia is not contagious and someone needed to take care of him and love him and make sure he was safe.

My mother would often bake our neighbour cakes and cookies and when she brought them over to his home, he smiled as if he remembered a time when his own wife had done the same thing for him.

The thought of my neighbour wandering the streets lost, scared and worried, waiting for someone to take him home was heartbreaking.

The thought of that helpless man looking for safety while being afraid of the world is not unlike how many of us may be feeling at times.

Aren't we all waiting for folks to be kinder, gentler, and to offer us comfort, a shoulder to lean on or a hand up?

I have noticed that people seem to be shorter on decorum and longer on impatience and anger these days.

Especially in this era of an aging baby boomer generation, dementia cases are on the rise while one in five people in Canada will experience dementia and wander at some point.

In a world becoming more isolationist, looking after the most vulnerable among us is wise.

We need to be compassionate while outfitting our loved ones with identification kits available through the Alzheimer Society.

Thank goodness we have the Lifeline Alert system here in our region distributed by Victim Services of Temiskaming.

This is an electronic system that sends an alert to police, victim services or emergency services personnel so they can find that person.

As much as we like the idea of being alone, alone does not thrive in a humane society. It takes a community.

Fire Safety Basics for Student Accommodation

When young people attend college or university, they will often be living away from home for the first time. This can be a concern for parents as they try to ensure their children will be safe when they're not living under the same roof. The following is important fire safety information that every student should know before moving away from home. Parents should discuss these basic fire safety rules with their kids before dropping them off at their new dwelling.

Cooking

Cooking is the number one cause of home fires in Ontario. If the student's accommodation has cooking facilities, there are some basic fire safety rules they must follow to prevent cooking fires:

- A stovetop fire can start in a flash, so stay in the kitchen when something is cooking on the stove.
- Keep all combustible items a safe distance away from the stove. This includes tea towels, wooden or plastic spoons and paper towels.
- Keep a pot lid near the stove to smother flames if a fire starts in a pot.

Space Heaters

The central heating systems in older accommodation is often supplemented with space heaters. To prevent heating fires:

- Keep the space heater at least one metre away from anything that can burn, such as paper, bedding, furniture and curtains.
- Turn off the space heater before going out or going to bed.

Candles

The use of candles is becoming more and more popular, especially among young people. To prevent candle fires:

- Use tea lights or votive candles in non-combustible containers as they are generally a safer choice than tapers.
- Place the candles in a location where they can't be knocked over or come in contact with combustible items.
- Blow out all candles before leaving the room or going to bed.

Social Gatherings

Parties are as much a part of student life as attending classes. While most student parties are harmless fun, the consumption of alcohol combined with cooking or smoking can create a serious fire risk. To minimize the risk of fires during or after parties:

- Avoid over-crowding. The more people attending the party, the easier it is to lose control of the situation.
- Encourage guests to smoke outside. Consider putting up no smoking signs that direct guests to an outside smoking area.
- Refrain from burning candles during parties. They can easily be knocked over or ignite nearby combustibles, unnoticed.

Smoking

Fires caused by smoking can be deadly. Even if they don't smoke themselves, chances are the student will have friends that do. To prevent smoking fires:

- Encourage smokers to go outside.
- Keep large, deep ashtrays on hand that will reduce the risk of ashes and cigarette butts falling onto rugs or upholstery.
- Allow ashes to cool completely before disposing.

Smoke alarms

If a fire does occur, it is critical that the dwelling have working smoke alarms to alert occupants as soon as possible.

- The responsibility for smoke alarm installation and maintenance lies with the homeowner or landlord, however it is a good idea for parents to provide their child with a smoke alarm for his or her bedroom.
- It is against the law for tenants to disable or tamper with a smoke alarm.
- If a smoke alarm activates due to steam from the shower or cooking on the stove, oven or toaster, ask the landlord to move the alarm to a different location, or to install a smoke alarm with a pause feature.

Electrical Equipment

Overloaded circuits and octopus wiring are dangerous electrical hazards that can be avoided. To prevent fires caused by electrical equipment:

- Use an approved power bar with a circuit breaker and surge protector to plug in computer and stereo equipment.
- Avoid the use of extension cords as permanent wiring.
- Make sure electrical cords are not concealed under carpets or rugs where they can be easily damaged.

Fire Escape Planning

When the smoke alarm sounds, everyone must know what to do and where to go. Encourage students to develop a fire escape plan, keeping the following in mind:

- Know two ways out of every room, if possible. The first way out would be the door, while the alternate escape could be a window that can be exited safely. Make sure all designated escape routes are accessible and free of clutter.
- Leave the building as quickly as possible. Once outside, don't re-enter the building for any reason.
- Call 9-1-1 from outside the building using a cell phone or neighbours' phone.

Fire Services

Student Accommodation

A parent's guide to finding fire-safe accommodation for students attending college or university

Parents have many issues to consider when seeking suitable accommodation for a daughter or son attending college or university. The following information will help to determine if potential accommodation make the grade when it comes to fire safety.

Smoke Alarms

It is the law in Ontario to have working smoke alarms on every storey and outside all sleeping areas. The law applies to single family, semi-detached, townhomes and apartments (including basement apartments), whether owner-occupied or rented. Rooming houses have specific regulations about smoke alarms or fire alarm systems. In addition to smoke alarms within each unit or suite, apartment buildings and student residences operated by the school may also have a building fire alarm system. Make sure the landlord, administrator or superintendent identifies and explains the fire alarm and detection features in the building and unit.

Exits

It is important to consider how people will escape from a room or apartment in an emergency. Every room or apartment requires adequate exits that will permit unobstructed escape from the building. Make sure to ask the landlord or superintendent to identify all of the designated exits. All windows and doors should open fully and easily.

Stairways and hallways must not be used for storage as this can pose serious fire safety hazards. Furniture and other obstacles can physically block exits and may fill hallways or stairways with smoke if they catch fire. This practice must be strictly avoided.

Electrical Safety

Many buildings offering lodging to students are older homes that may not have upgraded wiring. Outlets in bathrooms or within one metre of the kitchen sink should be the Ground Fault Circuit Interrupter (GFCI) type.

Consider the number and location of electrical outlets in the room or apartment. There should be enough outlets so that appliances such as lamps, computer equipment and stereos can be operated without the use of extension cords. If extension cords can't be avoided, use multi-outlet power bars that are approved and provide surge protection and a circuit breaker. Make sure that electrical cords of any kind are not concealed under carpets or rugs where they can be easily damaged.

Avoid overloaded circuits and octopus wiring.

Carbon Monoxide Alarms

Ontario law requires all homes/apartments to have a working carbon monoxide alarm outside all sleeping areas if there is a fuel-burning appliance or fireplace in the home/apartment. If the building has a service room or a garage, carbon monoxide alarms must be installed outside each sleeping area of all apartment units above, below and beside the service room or garage. If there is a service room, a carbon monoxide alarm also must be installed in the service room.

Fire Escape Plans

In a fire emergency, everyone must know what to do and where to go. Large apartment buildings and student residence buildings require a fire safety plan, which informs the occupants about emergency procedures. Ask the building administrator or superintendent to explain the procedures in the fire safety plan.

Smaller apartment buildings and houses that have been converted to apartments or lodging rooms may not have a fire safety plan, however it's a good idea to ensure there are two ways out of the unit. The alternate way out can be a window that can be safely exited in an emergency.

Fire Separations

Students often find accommodation in older homes that have been converted to apartments or rooming houses. At the time of the conversion, a building permit should have been obtained to ensure that fire safety features such as proper exits and fire separations between units are provided. Ask the owner if the property complies with the Building Code and Fire Code and to explain the fire safety features.

Security

Some property owners install bars on windows as a security measure. While this may seem appealing from a security point of view, it can prevent students from escaping in an emergency situation. Security bars on windows should be equipped with a quick-opening device on the inside so the bars can be removed quickly.

See the reverse for valuable fire safety information that every student should know before moving away from home.

For more information:

Contact the administration offices of the college or university. They will frequently maintain a registry of available accommodation for students. Call the local fire department to determine if the building has been inspected for Fire Code compliance.

Harley Township reviewing draft official plan

and communities set goals for growth and development by providing tools to manage change. It balances the provincial, community, and individual interests taking social, economic, and environmental factors into consideration. Land use planning helps in managing land and resources and guides municipalities' de-isions about where to: build homes and factories; locate parks and schools; and provide essential public services. Further, land use planning can help shape and protect the 'character' of a community."

She stated that "the current Official Plan for the Township of Harley has been in place for over 30 years, and since its passing, the Province has made significant updates to the Planning Act, as well as the Growth Plan for Northern Ontario 2011 and the Provincial Policy Statement (PPS) 2020. In 2021, JLR was hired to undertake a new Official Plan. The purpose of the Official Plan and Zoning By-law project is twofold," said Seymour.

"One, it helps to advance the community's vision, goals and objectives for land use planning. Secondly, it ensures that the land use policy and regulatory framework has regard to matters of provincial interest listed under Section 2 of the Planning Act; is consistent with policy statements issued under Section 3 of the Planning Act; and conforms with provincial plans or does not conflict with them."

More screening needed to detect colorectal cancer

DISTRICT (Special) - Despite being Canada's second leading cancer killer, nine out of 10 colorectal cancer cases can be prevented through screening.

The Colorectal Cancer Resource and Action Network (CCRAN) is a non-profit dedicated to reducing the burden of this devastating disease and is sounding the alarm on inadequate screening rates in Canada.

Since the introduction of colorectal cancer screening programs across the country, there has been a significant decline in colorectal cancer rates in the eligible population: those who are 50 and older and at average risk of developing the disease.

Screening works, but only for those who participate. Participation in screening programs ranges from 20 per cent to 51 per cent across Canada: over half of Canadians are missing out on a quick, painless, at-home test that could save their lives.

CCRAN calls upon governments, healthcare practitioners, and individuals to take action to save lives and works collectively with diverse stakeholders to improve uptake of screening.

Disturbingly, there is an alarming rise of early-age onset colorectal cancer (EA-OCRC) being diagnosed before the age of 50, yet these younger Canadians remain ineligible for screening. Across Canada, individuals under 50 frequently face barriers related to detection and diagnosis, leading to the disease often being diagnosed at a later and more lethal stage.

Additionally, the disease characteristics tend to be more aggressive in many EA-OCRC patients.

In response to these findings and the growing number of younger patients seeking support, education, and advocacy, the action network has dedicated a mandate to addressing early onset and calls for immediate, comprehensive, and collaborative action from all stakeholders.

CCRAN is dedicated to raising awareness of this disease and advocating for lowering the screening age. Screening saves lives and Canadians under 50 must be able to avail themselves of life-saving screening tests.

"The rise in early age onset cancer rates is deeply concerning and demands urgent

Housing and homelessness survey extended

DISTRICT (Staff/Special) - DTSSAB is reaching out to the public once more to get their thoughts on housing and homelessness in the district.

The District of Timiskaming Social Services Administration Board (DTSSAB) is working with OrgCode Consulting Inc. to gather information on the topic, and says public input is crucial in developing an effective and sustainable plan.

In an August 20 media release, DTSSAB said it's "releasing a survey to continue the data collection efforts that took place on July 29 and 30 in Kirkland Lake and New Liskeard. DTSSAB extends sincere thanks to the 50 to 65 individuals who generously donated their time to participate in the community engagement sessions held throughout the district during the week of July 29. Your involvement reflects a strong commitment to the community and to the development of strategies that support housing in our area. The success and sustainability of a Housing and Homelessness Plan tailored to the district's unique needs rely on this community input, as well as the valuable insights we've received from our partners.

"This initiative plays a vital role in DTSSAB's Housing and Homelessness Plan, as required by the Ontario Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing. The plan must be regularly reviewed and updated to align with current needs and conditions.

"As the Service Manager for Community Housing and Homelessness, DTSSAB is dedicated to building a sustainable, integrated, and affordable housing system. This effort includes collaboration with local municipalities, various levels of government, private developers, non-profit housing providers, community agencies, local businesses, and residents. Key partners in this initiative include the Canadian Mental Health Association, Salvation Army, Hope Haven, Zack's Crib, and Pavilion," the media release continued.

The survey has been prepared by OrgCode Consulting Inc. and can be found at <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/DTSSABHousing>.

The survey will close September 10, 2024.

action," said Filomena Servidio-Italiano, president and CEO of CCRAN.

"Through our initiatives, we aim to provide support, raise awareness, and drive meaningful progress in the fight against early age onset cancer."

Colorectal cancer is the second leading cause of cancer death in Canada and the third most diagnosed cancer in men and in women. In 2023, 24,100 Canadians were diagnosed with the disease and 9,300 Canadians died from colorectal cancer. Unfortunately, both cases and deaths are expected to increase beginning in 2030, and this will largely be driven by those currently under the age of 40.
