City urges rollback of alcohol retail sale expansion

Diane Johnston

TEMISKAMING SHORES – City council is calling on the province to reverse the recent expansion of alcohol sales to more retail outlets.

Temiskaming Shores council has also endorsed several recommendations that would limit where alcohol is sold.

It's also asking that some of the revenue the province derives from alcohol sales be used to address alcohol-related harms.

The measures were in a resolution proposed by Councillor Mark Wilson last month and considered by council September 17.

In the resolution, the city listed the detrimental impacts of alcohol on health and road safety, and its role in domestic violence, sexual assaults and physical assaults.

Alcohol-related harms, it said, cost the Ontario economy $7 billion a year.

In Temiskaming, it noted more than a third of students in grades 10 and 11 report consuming alcohol at age 13 or younger, and almost half say they've been drunk at least once in their life.

Most of the tax revenue from the sale of alcohol goes to the province, "yet the costs

Prostate Cancer Awareness

Did you know?

- Prostate cancer is the most common cancer to affect Canadian men;
- One in eight men will be diagnosed with the disease in their lifetime;
- Over 90% of prostate cancer cases are curable if detected and treated in their earliest stages

Signs and Symptoms of Prostate Cancer

- Difficulty urinating
- Urgent need to urinate
- Frequent urination, especially at night
- Burning or pain when urinating
- Inability to urinate or difficulty starting or stopping urine flow
- Painful ejaculation
- Blood in the urine or semen

Risk Factors

While any man can develop prostate cancer, you may be at a higher risk if you are...

- Over 50: Age is the strongest risk factor for prostate cancer. Your risk increases starting at age 50, and most cases are diagnosed in men over age 65. Depending on your risk, your health care provider may recommend that you think about testing at an earlier age – as young as 40.
- Have a family history of prostate cancer: Your risk is higher if a first-degree relative (father or brother) has had prostate cancer. Your risk increases with each additional first-degree relative who has the disease.
- African or Caribbean: Prostate cancer is more common among men in these ethnic groups. (Men of Asian descent have lower risk.)

Don't Ignore Symptoms

The sooner symptoms are reported to your health care provider, the sooner testing to help diagnose and treat the problem can begin. Symptoms may be caused by prostate cancer or by another health problem.

Symptoms are not always present especially in the early stages of prostate cancer. If detected and treated in its earliest stages, the chances of survival are greatly increased. If you have questions about whether or not you should have a PSA test, talk to your doctor or nurse practitioner. Early detection is key!

EDITORIAL

Flooding revisited

The September 13 Weekender editorial, A Flood of Concerns, talked about flooding in Temiskaming Shores that occurred near the end of August after an especially heavy summer storm.

It said a lot of rainfall in a short time “caused flooding to several businesses and homes around Temiskaming Shores, in particular the businesses located near the mall.”

The editorial asked: “So when will the city adequately address the issue of more potential flooding in that business-heavy location?”

Well, we got it wrong.

In an email, a city official pointed out that “the flooding of parking lots along Highway 65 is an MTO and private business issue as we do not own land or maintain in this area. This topic has been raised to them over the years. City storm infrastructure outlets to an approved ditch system and private systems in this area.”

While the original editorial may have made some good points about infrastructure and drainage and how trees may mitigate some of the problems by absorbing water, it was unfair of the editorial to lay the blame at the feet of the city.

We should have asked the city about its responsibilities before making such blanket statements.

The city official noted, “I’m not saying we are perfect,” and that certainly applies to us here at The Weekender and at The Speaker as well. We’re not perfect either, but we can and will strive to do better.

Books change lives

Sue Nielsen

I was around ten years old when I discovered the world of books and reading at our Cobalt Public Library.

At that time the library was located up a short flight of stairs above the Cobalt Post Office, across the hall from the Customs Office.

I felt like the library was a paradise, once I discovered all the books available for a child's spongy mind to discover and soak in.

It's really a shame that children these days may never know what discovering a library is like because of the virtual quality of their lives.

I see good things happening at our local libraries with moms and tots reading programs and activities geared towards children.

With the disappearance of school libraries in favour of maker spaces, the likelihood of kids getting hooked on reading versus 3-D printers and video games is less likely.

I read books that opened my mind to the big wide world we have.

As I got older I read banned books like Of Mice and Men by John Steinbeck, The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz by Mordecai Richler, Brave New World by Aldous Huxley and more.

Some I have re-read over the years and some books I feel compelled to keep close to me on my nightstand or in my car.

The books that I keep close to me are anything written by Indigenous author Richard Wagamese, Mary Oliver books and books about nature written by Richard Louv.

I want to say here that I believe books saved my life and that books gave me hope and kept me on the right path in life.

As a child, sometimes we are thrust into the world of adults without much choice in the matter.

I was a skinny, gawky, tom-boyish kid running the streets of Cobalt, learning to love reading. As a pubescent teen I felt less alone in the world if I had a book in my hand.

Books showed me how important truth is.

I eventually came to be a writer and this has made all the difference in the world to my life.

Writers are my heroes as words can transform and change a human heart far better than bombs, bullets and bullying ever did.

If I go shopping with a friend or a family member I often say, don't worry, take your time, I'll sit in the car and wait because I have a stash of books to escape into.

You know what books can do? They can change the world. They can change hearts and minds and perspectives and long-believed erroneous "truths." They can speak truth to power. They can encourage, empower and educate in a world of conspiracy theories and dumbed-down notions.

As we wrap-up Banned Book Week (September 22-28) let's ban assault rifles and hate instead.

City urges rollback of alcohol retail sale expansion

and harms that are alcohol related are borne by the municipalities in the form of policing and social services and public health issues," it said.

The resolution urged the Ontario government to permit municipalities to opt out of retail alcohol expansion, and to grant them the power to use zoning to determine where new retail locations would be acceptable.

It also called for alcohol sales to be prohibited at gas stations and within 150 metres of schools, daycares and substance use facilities.

The only reservation was expressed by Mayor Jeff Laferriere, who was concerned over a provision that would allow municipalities to opt out of the recent expansion of sale outlets.

If one municipality opts out but the neighbouring community does not, he said health and safety risks could rise as people drive to locations to buy alcohol.

"I think we need to make sure this is consistent and across the board," he said.

CASE AGAINST EXPANSION

The discussion followed an earlier presentation by Walter Humeniuk, a research, planning and policy analyst at the Timiskaming Health Unit.

"Alcohol is not a harmless substance, and if we are going to reduce alcohol-related harms and encourage healthy choices, we need to consider the environment that we're creating and the policies that help shape that environment," he told council.

Ontario's alcohol-related costs in health care, the justice system, lost productivity and other areas surpass those linked to tobacco, opioids or cannabis, he said.

Alcohol, he said, is the leading risk factor for death and disability among Canadians aged 15 to 49, and the direct cause of more than 60 chronic diseases and at least seven types of cancer.

"Some studies show that less than half of Canadians know that alcohol causes cancer. In fact, alcohol consumption is the third leading cause of preventable cancer, and it doesn't have to be consumed in large quantities to do so."

The latest research, he said, shows there is no safe level of alcohol consumption.

In Ontario each year, he said about 4,300 deaths, 22,000 hospitalizations and 195,000 emergency visits are entirely attributable to alcohol.

One year after the introduction of alcohol sales to grocery stores, he said the number of alcohol-caused emergency department visits in Ontario increased 18 per cent.

Health and policy experts expect those numbers to rise as alcohol is available at more retail outlets, he said.

"Convenience comes with a price," he said.

In Temiskaming, he said the rate of hospitalization attributable to alcohol is already "significantly higher" than the provincial average.

Humeniuk said 17.3 per cent of the district's population reports engaging in heavy drinking, which is defined as five or more standard drinks on a single occasion.

"That's almost 5,000 people," he said.

Just over 15 per cent report consuming seven or more drinks in the past week, increasing their risk of acute and chronic harms, he said.

The numbers are probably higher, he said, because the statistics rely on individuals reporting their own consumption.

He said a coalition of health care providers recently put a ten-point plan to the province to help mitigate alcohol-related harms.

"The province has been resistant to implementing any of these suggestions so far," he said.

Municipalities can act on their own, he said, through zoning bylaws, the licensing of outdoor patios, and regulating the sale and marketing of alcohol at events on municipal property.

Councillor Danny Whalen described the recent expansion of retail sales outlets as another form of provincial downloading to municipalities through, as an example, increased policing costs.

One concern that has not been raised, he said, is the impact on already rising insurance rates.

He worried that the number of alcohol retail outlets in a specific area will factor into premiums.

Whalen urged that the data presented by Humeniuk be updated in 12 to 24 months in order to assess the impact of its increased availability.

Humeniuk said he's finalizing a document that the health unit will be sharing with municipalities about to not just alcohol but also addressing harms related to tobacco and cannabis.

JEAN MARC BOILEAU

Armstrong Mayor Jean Marc Boileau later stated that he was with the Earlton Lions Club for about 15 years and “when I got on council I just moved on.”

It was noted by Councillor Michele Rivard that Boileau had not wanted to be one of the nominees, and wanted instead to create an opportunity for someone else to be nominated, but the committee in charge of the selection felt strongly that he should have it.

Boileau later related that he has been on the township recreation committee for over ten years and he’s been a member of the police committee for about ten years.

He said the main thing he enjoys about volunteering is meeting people and working with kids and helping them to keep busy both in the summer and the winter.

He noted that he watches the arena in Earlton on weekends or whenever the arena is rented, and he has been doing that for several years.

BRUNO DALLAIRE

Bruno Dallaire is a member of the Knights of Columbus where he has served as president, and where he has been involved with the Moose Dance.

As an educator he has been involved with his local union, the Elementary Teachers Federation of Ontario. With the union he has been able to travel abroad, to Burkina Faso and Haiti, to bring professional development to teachers there. He did that four times, he said.

He is also involved with Camp Jeunesse en Marche where he is a board member.

“Just recently I joined the Fondation Communautaire du Temiskaming,” he noted.

DEBBIE DEMERS

"I have been volunteering all my life," she later said. "I was lucky enough to be brought up in a family that believes in that, and I also married someone who believes in that as well."

She said that she enjoys volunteering because through it she meets new people and learns new things from them.

"People don't know what's out there until you do volunteer work," she said.

She added that "the greatest reward is seeing the positive outcomes that come out of doing the volunteer work. That's what keeps this place going."

CALEB FOTHERINGHAM

Caleb Fotheringham was nominated because of his volunteer work which supports activities for children. He involves himself at all levels of baseball, as well as coaching hockey, and works to get kids out to be active.

FRANCOIS GAUTHIER

Francois Gauthier is past president of the Earlton Lions Club, and has also served as the chair of the Coeur du Village which he was instrumental in bringing into being.

Gauthier said he volunteers in the community because he was in business for 31 years in Earlton, and the volunteer work he now does is "payback for all the people who supported me over the years."

He said he most enjoys organizing events.

GISELE GAUTHIER

Gisele Gauthier has been involved in meals for students at École Catholique Assumption in Earlton. She goes there every second day, she said.

Following that she goes to painting classes where she volunteers.

She also volunteers at Paroisse Saint-Jean-Baptiste in Earlton, assisting by preparing meals for those attending funerals, and in other areas where needed.

You may be given a management position at work. However, you must carefully consider if it's the right fit for you. You must learn to regulate your emotions and communicate effectively to maintain a healthy balance.

GEMINI

Adopting a new diet and exercising regularly will achieve satisfying results. This will lead to personal satisfaction and well-deserved pride. You'll be happy you took on the challenge.

CANCER

You have a gift for saying out loud what others are thinking. However, make sure your comments don't come across as overly critical to avoid hurting or shocking others. It's crucial to maintain a balanced communication approach.

LEO

If you're struggling financially, carefully review your bills for any errors that could save you money and alleviate your worries.

SAGITTARIUS

The stars will align to help you launch your own business or be promoted at work. Take the opportunity to explore new talents and open yourself to promising opportunities.

HARVEST TO HOME WRAPS UP

The Harvest to Home Market in Evanturel Township had its last day for the season September 21. Barb Beachey (left) related that this year vendors sold just under $7,000 in produce and other items, and she noted that money will stay in the Evanturel Township area. She has been heading up the market as the chair of the township's community events and activities committee. She has announced her intention to step down as councillor at the end of October. She is pictured here with volunteer Maria Montminy. (LJI photo by Darlene Wroe)

Awards presented to volunteers

her mother encouraged her to volunteer because "I needed to do something outside of being sick, and that really brought me back to doing stuff."

She said she enjoys volunteering because it helps her meet people "and you're doing something for somebody, and the kids are all happy."

She added, "I don't know if we would have so many things going if there wasn't volunteering."
