OPP reports crashes, crimes decline in Temiskaming region

Joe O'Grady
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

TEMISKAMING SHORES - Despite a fever pitch of online commentary about highway crashes over the past year, statistics from the Temiskaming OPP detachment actually show a decrease in most driving-related incidents over previous years.

The number of speed-related crashes, however, almost doubled.

The detachment's fiscal 2025 annual report, presented to Temiskaming Shores city council during its July 14 meeting, shows a decline in non-fatal injury collisions from 70 in 2024 to 63 in 2025, and a decline in injuries from 97 to 75.

Property-related collisions were down from 398 to 380, and alcohol-related collisions dropped from 22 to 17.

Notable increases were four traffic fatalities - two snowmobile related - compared to two in 2024, and a jump in speed-related collisions from 55 to 90.

Overall, traffic violations dipped from 57 in 2024 to 41 in 2025, including a decline in impaired offences to 29 compared to 32 in 2024.

The "big four" causes of driving offences all declined year over year, including distracted driving, impaired, seatbelt and speeding offences. Impaired saw the biggest decline, from 114 in 2024 to 82 in 2025.

Beyond traffic, statistics show a decline in most categories of violent crimes, with sexual offences being an exception, where the number of cases jumped from 34 to 46. No homicides were reported for the third year in a row and assaults and firearms-related offences dipped to 148 from a high of 167 in 2024.

Property crimes were down in most categories except for fraud, which rose from 123 in 2024 to 150 in 2025. Fraud also saw the lowest police case clearance rate of 18 per cent.

Drug-related offences dipped to 19 from 22, with a clearance rate of almost 79 per cent.

The Temiskaming Detachment covers the region from Temagami up to Chamberlain Township north of Englehart, west past Gowganda, and east to the Quebec border.

Detachment Commander Inspector Andy Barrette

Barrette said he was pleased with the successes contained in the report.

"I am proud of the work undertaken by our detachment," he said in the report preface.

"In 2025, we reviewed our successes and areas that previously required improvement. We have enhanced our offender management by assigning an Offender Management Officer to monitor compliance and ensure proper tracking, resulting in a decrease in recidivism; we maintained our commitment to traffic safety and prioritized compliance of regulations by conducting patrols focused on equipment. This resulted in education and enforcement of traffic safety and deficiencies related to equipment.

BOOK ART

Local artist Faye Digulla has donated several pieces of her Book Art to the Temiskaming Shores Public Library (TSPL). From the left are TSPL community services librarian Cole McNaughton, Digulla and library CEO Rebecca Hunt. The pieces are now part of the permanent collection of art in the library and are on display on the lower level. "When the donation was offered, I just thought it was a perfect fit, to have book art in the library," said Hunt. "The pieces add visual interest to the book collection and liven up the space." Care for seniors

There are many things in life that require protesting, but the Barr Trails issue is not one of them.

There was an online petition being circulated opposing the development of a long-term care home near the Temiskaming Hospital.

It said that some hiking trails would be compromised if a long-term care home was built near the hospital.

Northern Ontario and the Temiskaming region has a majority of its population north of 50.

In the coming years the silver boom will continue and long-term care homes are an essential part of delivering housing to area seniors.

Thousands of seniors are entering advanced age brackets shifting the need for added housing and health care.

Seniors need places to stay in their communities near family and friends, they need health care close by, they need socialization with other seniors and they need housing.

The long-term care home that could be built near the Temiskaming Hospital checks off all those boxes.

Isn't it time we pay attention to the needs of seniors, who built this region and continue to be the backbone of nearly all service clubs in the area?

Seniors have a right to adequate housing and long-term care homes are valuable resources for older adults.

Temiskaming Shores is rife with places to hike, walk dogs and enjoy nature -isn't it about time we looked after our senior population?

A firestorm of memories

Sue Nielsen

The ad said: wood stove for sale, buyer must move.

I would have given anything to have that old wood stove. It looked identical to the one in my grandmother's kitchen when she lived at 7 Helen Street in Cobalt.

I walked down her street the other day, someone else lives there now.

I still see the place where she had her garden and I remember digging up potatoes in late summer that she would cook in a delicious stew.

The stove was being sold by a Portage Bay cottage owner and who knows, it may have been my gran's at one point.

Seeing that wood stove ignited a flood of wonderful memories of my gran and the times I spent in her kitchen.

Orpha Church Smith bore seven children in that house and never went to a hospital for a single birth.

She would often let her grandkids stoke the old wood stove in the kitchen.

That's the stove that produced her amazing home-made bread, date squares, chocolate chip cookies, blueberry pies and Christmas turkeys.

It was the centre of her household.

I still remember the black landline telephone she had on the wall involving a party line back then.

Emblazoned in my memory banks is Orpha's telephone number - 679-8200.

You see my gran was one of the most admirable people I have ever met, I could be biased.

She treated all her kids and grandkids with the same level of affection and kindness.

Gran lived to be 101, and her father, Spencer Church, lived to the ripe old age of 111.

He was the oldest man in Canada at one time.

The Church family hailed from the Ottawa Valley and the Calabogie area.

Gran and her man, my granddad, Charles Smith, came north as teens to find their fame and fortune in the silver city at the turn of the century.

Gran would often tell her grandkids stories about the early days of Cobalt and we didn't have to read about our history in a Charlie Angus book, we lived it.

Our Cobalt family history dates back over 120 years and gran used to say there was no other place she'd live but Cobalt.

When she arrived in Cobalt in 1910, she described the town as dirty and being a man camp.

She overcame many a hardship in those early days.

Orpha passed down the simple truths in life to her grandkids about kindness, goodness.

They say there is a certain age when grandkids lose interest in their grandparents. I never lost interest in my grandmother as she was one of my favourite people on the planet.

Actually, when I come to think about it, both of my grandmothers were exceptional women, each with their own unique perspective on life.

Their unconditional love was a blessing.

Overdose Awareness

An overdose means having more of a drug (or combination of drugs) than your body can handle. All drugs can cause an overdose, including prescription medication. It's important to know the right amount and the right time to take your medication. It's also extremely important to know what drugs should not be mixed, and to get help if you feel you are not in control of your drug use.

Depressants and Opioids

A depressant is a drug that slows the vital activities of the body including breathing and heart rate. Depressants may also be known as sedatives. Opioids (such as heroin and pharmaceutical opioids like hydrocodone), medications like Xanax or Valium and alcohol all slow the central nervous system to produce a calming effect. When taken in large amounts or in combination with other medications and/or alcohol, these medications can weaken normal functions like breathing and lower heart rate until breathing and heart rate eventually stop, resulting in death.

Alcohol

Typically, people don't think of alcohol when they think of an overdose, but alcohol is a depressant and it is possible to overdose on it. Acute alcohol poisoning, usually a result of binge drinking, is an example.

If you drink a large amount of alcohol quickly, the level of alcohol in your bloodstream can become dangerously high. Alcohol poisoning could stop you from breathing, stop your heart or cause you to choke on your own vomit.

Stimulants

It is possible to overdose on amphetamines. Adderall and Dexedrine are both examples of prescription stimulants. Amphetamine overdose increases the risk of heart attack, stroke, seizure or drug-induced psychotic episodes.

When to Call an Ambulance

Seeking emergency help isn't just for when someone is unconscious. You should also seek help when someone is:

- Having a seizure
- Experiencing severe headache
- Experiencing chest pain
- Having a hard time breathing
- Extremely paranoid, agitated and/or confused

It is not necessary for someone to have all of these signs or symptoms for them to be overdosing. Showing signs of one or more could still mean they are in trouble and need emergency help.

Always call an ambulance if you suspect someone has overdosed!!

“We responded to a major event in the Latchford area, resulting in the arrest of an armed subject. Based on concerns from community members, we increased our community patrol in the downtown core of Temiskaming Shores. This resulted in a decrease in minor thefts and vandalism.”

“We continued to leverage technology, including body worn cameras, in-car cameras, ALPR (Automated License Plate Recognition), and evidence management to support the collection of evidence, increase transparency and enhance public and officer safety.”

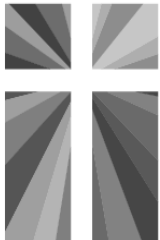

Insp. Barrette said the detachment also partnered with community-based organizations, such as the Canadian Mental Health Association for Cochrane-Temiskaming “to develop/implement co-response models that enhance our ability to respond to mental health-related calls.”

The detachment also partnered with community-based organizations including Victims Services of Temiskaming and District to better support victims by connecting them with local resources.

“As we look ahead to emerging challenges and new opportunities in policing and community safety, our detachment members remain committed to our mission to serve our communities, protect our citizens, uphold the law, and preserve public safety.”
