Candidate profiles

Nine vying for six city council seats

Speaker Reporter

TEMISKAMING SHORES - Nine candidates are in the running for six councillor posts in Temiskaming Shores.

The field includes all six incumbents - Jesse Foley, Patricia Hewitt, Doug Jelly, Jeff Laferriere, Mike McArthur and Danny Whalen.

Also on the ballot are Dan Dawson, a retired OPP officer seeking his first council seat; Rory Moore, a teacher who's making his first run for a councillor seat, and James T. Paterson, a financial adviser and insurance agent who served a partial term on council about 10 years ago.

Profiles of the candidates follow, in alphabetical order:

DAN DAWSON

Dan Dawson, 62, is running in his first election.

The Dymond resident retired three years ago after a 37-year career with the Ontario Provincial Police, where he reached the rank of inspector and detachment commander.

He currently chairs the boards of Victim Services of Temiskaming and District and Tri-Town Region Crime Stoppers.

As an OPP officer, he had some involvement at the municipal level. Outside of work, he has also volunteered with a number of organizations and fundraising efforts.

"I've had a passion all my life to be involved in politics," Dawson said.

After retiring from the OPP, he was eligible to run for office. He's concerned about the state of the municipality's infrastructure and wants to see "less money spent on the luxuries of the city and more on the necessities of the city."

Upgrading underground water and sewer services, he said, would avoid the necessity for roads to be dug up on a regular basis.

In general, he said, he's running to ensure accountability and efficient spending of taxpayers' dollars.

He said he wants to ensure that city staff are held accountable and that there's a process in place "so that we're getting the best bang for our buck."

JESSE FOLEY

Jesse Foley, 39, is seeking re-election after his first term.

The New Liskeard resident is a fixed operations manager for structure, such as public ser-Tri-Town Toyota.

In the past council term, he served on committees overseeing recreation, the new splash pad project in New Liskeard, the bicycle-friendly initiative, and agriculture and natural resources.

He's involved with the Tri-Town Ski and Snowboard Village, coaches kids in the Temiskaming Track Club in the spring, and is also active on the local music scene.

He said he really enjoyed his first term on council, describing it as "a good learning expe-

As the father of two young children, he said he offers council "a different perspective."

He said the city must address its infrastructure needs and find ways to make repairs without hitting taxpayers too

He said he's also excited about the new economic development corporation, and hopes it'll bring jobs "that can keep our kids here."

PATRICIA HEWITT

Patricia Hewitt, 55, is seeking re-election after her first term.

After a long career in public health, the New Liskeard resident became owner and operator of the Old Mission Resort a little over a year ago.

During the past term, she was a council representative on the district social services administration board and the New Liskeard Business Improvement Area organization.

She's a member of the public works committee and age-friendly community committee, and was recently appointed to the new Temiskaming Shores Development Corporation board.

Outside of council, she's involved with the Temiskaming Community Choir, Nastawgan Trails, Temiskaming Nordic Ski Club, Temiskaming Arts Council, and the RockWalk Park at Northern College's Haileybury campus.

"First and foremost, I've always had an interest in the health and well-being of our residents," Hewitt said.

"I think we've done a lot to ensure our public purse is allocated wisely for our physical infrastructure."

But she said it's also important to invest in social infravices, parks and recreation.

Ensuring adequate seniors' housing is also a priority, she

If the city hopes to retain its youth and attract newcomers, she said the city must work with regional and provincial partners to develop "sustainable and meaningful" employ-

She's "very excited" about the potential of the new development corporation.

"We have a creative community already," she said, and considered the corporation a way to propel those opportunities forward.

She said she offers "a fresh perspective," and added that she's the first woman to serve as a councillor in Temiskaming Shores.

But she's also pleased that the current members of council, while holding different opinions, have "worked well together as a team."

DOUG JELLY

Doug Jelly, 69, is seeking his third council term.

The New Liskeard resident retired as chief of the New Liskeard Police Service.

He currently chairs the city's public works and protection to persons and property committees and the Temiskaming Shores Police Services Board.

He also chairs the District of Timiskaming Social Services Administration Board and represents Zone 1A – which covers much of Northeastern Ontario - on the Ontario Association of Police Services Boards.

He's president of Branch 33 of the Royal Canadian Legion in New Liskeard and a drummer with its pipe band.

He's also a member of the Village Noël Temiskaming organizing committee and volunteers at a variety of community events.

"I'm running again because there are lots of projects I'd like to see go through," he said.

He'd like to see, for example, the completion of the social services board's rental housing development in Dymond.

Reflecting on his past two terms, Jelly said he's proud of the infrastructure upgrades the city has made, particularly in water services and roads.

It invests about $1 million of local tax dollars each year in infrastructure, on top of outside funding for specific projects, he said.

so I'd like to see that keep go-

He said it must also look at opportunities to bring employment into the region, whether in Temiskaming Shores or outside.

outside the city brings greater exposure to Temiskaming Shores, and also offers the opportunity to meet with provincial government ministers.

That provincial recognition "is good for the area," he said.

In light of work underway, "I think the future looks good for Temiskaming Shores."

JEFF LAFERRIERE

Jeff Laferriere, 54, is seeking a second term on city council.

The Haileybury resident is manager of the New Liskeard RBC branch.

He served six years on council in the former town of Haileybury and returned to municipal politics in the city in

In the past term, he chaired the corporate services committee, sat on the strategic economic development unit, and was a council appointee to the library board.

Outside of council, he's a member of the physician recruitment and retention committee and adviser to The Temiskaming Foundation, and has served for many years as a hockey official.

He's also a member of the Haileybury Golf Club and the Cobalt-Haileybury Curling Club.

He said the city has made progress over the past four years, and is probably one reason why all seven incumbents are running again.

He said the city "put the pillars in place to move forward."

They include an asset management plan and vehicle fleet replacement plan.

He said council also put in place a process that enables it to approve a budget for a new year prior to that year's start, "so we can focus on priorities and really get things done.

He described infrastructure as a "critical" issue.

He said the city has also put money into reserves so it's ready when senior levels "I think it's a good program, of government offer to share costs on projects.

"Hopefully we can continue Looking to the future, he to work and partner with the province and federal government to get our fair share of funding," said Laferriere.

> "We can't do the infrastructure piece on the backs of the limited number of ratepayers we have."

The city must also under-He said his role with boards stand the impact of a growing population of seniors on everything from housing to transportation to hospital services, he said.

> "We need them in our tax base. We need them to stay in their homes as long as possible, if that makes sense to them. And for those who can't. we need to make sure we have alternative housing."

> He said council has also had "a lot of discussion" over the past term to understand the operation of the municipality and to work with staff on prioritizing what's important.

> He said the new development corporation is a tool to address the city's economic development needs.

> "But there's a lot of work that needs to be done now to focus on a regional perspective," he

> It makes sense for communities to work together to decide what services are needed, where they're needed and how to pay for them, he said.

> That approach, he said, will also help the region get the government's attention.

MIKE MCARTHUR

Mike McArthur is pursuing his fourth consecutive term as a councillor.

The 71-year-old is retired after a career in broadcast, mall management, and sales.

In the most recent council term, he chaired the recreation committee and sat on committees dealing with accessibility, transit, protection to persons and property, and the splash pad project.

He has also served on the Timiskaming Board of Health, which oversees the Timiskaming Health Unit, as a council appointee for 11 years.

He said he lends a hand with community events and fundraisers as time permits.

Nine vying for six city council seats

"I really do like working with and for the public," he said.

"If taxpayers are contacting me with an issue, I listen to them, I get the facts, I ask questions, and then I hopefully can get results."

Looking at the next five to 10 years, he said the city must look at affordable housing.

Infrastructure "is always going to be on the list."

He said the municipality must press the provincial and federal governments for funding to upgrade the services for which municipalities are responsible.

When it comes to taxes, he said council must be able to justify any increase.

And if it invests in projects, "we have to have results."

He's optimistic about the new development corporation that's being created.

"I think this could be the window that we've been looking for, the avenue we have to go down, to try to get new businesses and make sure we fill up the Dymond Industrial Park."

He expressed support for the Earlton-Timiskaming airport authority, the age-friendly and Healthy Kids initiatives, the STATO trail and the share-theroad promotions.

He said the city has improved its recreation services, and pointed to upgrades at the Pool-Fitness Centre, playgrounds and the marinas.

But he said a recreation master plan is needed.

In his view, the New Liskeard library branch needs relocation to a new site.

If re-elected, he said he would call for a return to the committee-of-the-whole system, in which all council members meet to discuss the full range of municipal business.

At this time, council members sit on different committees, which bring their recommendations to the full council for discussion and a decision.

Under the committee-ofthe-whole system, he said all council members learn about issues and proposals at the same time and then have time for reflection prior to making a decision.

RORY MOORE

Rory Moore is taking his first run at a councillor's position.

Moore, who said he's in his early 60s, is a teacher living in New Liskeard.

He ran for mayor in 2014, placing second with almost 1,100 votes. He served on the Temiskaming Shores recreation committee for two terms.

He's currently a member of the New Liskeard Lions Club, the Haileybury School of Mines Alumni board of directors, Tri-

Town Lacrosse Association Temiskaming Shores Minor and Knights of Columbus. Hockey Association and presi-

He served on the Harder 4 Carter skateboard park committee, including as funding application writer.

He recently served on the Tri-Town Bingo Association and Tri-Town Labour Council, and also sat on the Temiskaming Hospital board for six years.

In the past, he's worked with the New Liskeard Agricultural Society and the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

In an email, Moore said he's running for council to "focus on positive community building" for families and businesses, and to open the municipality's doors to new opportunities to increase the tax base.

He said the municipality should tackle the real priorities of high taxes by encouraging growth, not turning it away.

He proposes using existing buildings as an incubator for new businesses and young entrepreneurs.

He supports the publication of a comprehensive and easy-to-read municipal budget.

He proposes that Temiskaming Shores employ benchmarks to chart its performance and use best practices from communities of similar size.

He also calls for investment in the city's natural resources, including Pete's Dam Park and Devil's Rock, to ensure their future

He encouraged everyone to be part of the solution through "ongoing and open dialogue."

"You are what you do," he said. "If you want to be a critic, you should be prepared to be a helper."

In terms of specific projects he'd like to pursue if elected, he sees potential to develop retirement living.

"Within eight years, 6,600 people will be over 60 years old

"Rather than seeing this as a negative issue, we should see it as an opportunity to attract new people to this area.

"This is a great place to live. We should focus on this strength and use the successes of places like Elliot Lake to grow our community."

He also proposed two environmental initiatives – a seasonal drop-off bin for hazardous materials and, for grass cuttings, a brown paper bag pickup or neighbourhood compost drop-offs where requested.

JAMES T. PATERSON

James T. Paterson, 44, is seeking a return to council.

The New Liskeard resident is a financial adviser and associate insurance agent.

He's president of the Temiskaming Shores Minor Hockey Association and president of the Knock Cancer Out of the Park Shanna Larsen Memorial slo-pitch tournament.

He's also a member of the Temiskaming Shores and Area Chamber of Commerce executive and commissioner of the Temiskaming Shores men's slo-pitch league.

He's an emcee at the Literacy Council of South Temiskaming's Hilda Fowke Memorial Spelling Bee and an on-air host of CJTT's Christmas Wish.

He was appointed to fill a vacant seat on city council in 2009-10, and narrowly missed winning a councillor's seat in 2014

In a statement, Paterson said he and his wife were raised in the area and are raising their own family here.

"The people and the future of this community are near and dear to our hearts."

He said he would listen to residents' concerns and "be a voice for those concerns on council."

"I understand the need for responsible taxation," he said.

"I will work with mayor and council to realize property tax relief to our seniors and young families that need assistance with rising property taxes."

He said he shares the frustration "surrounding the conditions of our roads and the crumbling infrastructure of our community.

"I will work diligently with council to find and use funding so that more of our roads can be fixed and maintained properly.

"The need for affordable housing for seniors and young families alike is paramount to our community's future.

"I pledge to work with our area developers to ensure new subdivisions contain housing for all our citizens.

"By providing responsible taxation, improved infrastructure, affordable housing and increased opportunities for employment, I believe we will be in position to continue to make our community an active and attractive place for businesses to invest, families to live, and our seniors to stay."

DANNY WHALEN

Danny Whalen, 61, is seeking a third consecutive term on city council.

The New Liskeard resident is retired from the automotive sector in Temiskaming Shores.

He's spent more than two decades in municipal politics, including two consecutive terms as reeve of the former Dymond council.

In the current term, he chaired the building maintenance committee and also sat on the corporate services and Temiskaming Transit committees, the police services board and library board.

He was recently named a municipal appointee to the new Temiskaming Shores Development Corporation board.

During the current term, he also served as Temiskaming Municipal Association chair until early 2016.

He was recently elected president of the Federation of Northern Ontario Municipalities, where he has served on the executive since 2012. He has also been named to the Northern caucus of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario.

He's also a member of GEMS, Going the Extra Mile Safely, which is pressing for a pilot project to improve Highway 11 safety.

Whalen is proud of council's record on the management front, and wants to see it continue.

"(Mayor Carman Kidd) is on the right track," he said.

He said the city has managed to approve its budget prior to the start of the new year.

It's enabled the municipality to begin drafting plans and releasing tenders for capital projects early in the year "and that has been working exceptionally well."

Almost all projects are being completed on schedule and many are under budget, "because we have time to do everything earlier," he said.

That money can then be invested in more projects immediately or put in reserves for future infrastructure needs, he said.

He said the city is also developing its budget based on facts and plans, such as its asset management plan.

"If you do a wish-list budget, you could be there until August," he said.

He also commended the city's staff as "very responsible and productive."

Looking to the future, he would like to see the city's long-term landfill management needs resolved.

As the Haileybury landfill nears capacity, the city has applied to reopen and expand the former New Liskeard landfill. But working its way through the provincial review and approvals process has taken years.

If city council can get the issue settled in the next term, "that would be a big burden off the councils going forward," he said.

He's also looking forward to progress under the formation of an economic development corporation. It will benefit from the assistance of a regional economic development officer, he said.

That position was recently announced, with support for three years from FedNor.

"You can have municipal issues, but at the end of the day, if it's good for Temiskaming, it's good for Temiskaming Shores. And if it's good for Temiskaming Shores, it's good for Temiskaming," he said.

IT'S NEVER BEEN EASIER!

Searching for a new car, home or just something to do this weekend? Make it easy on yourself.

Englehart Bulletin Board Englehart Echoes

By Bud Colquhoun

Ralph Coles is back home in Hamilton, after a detour around by Sudbury to visit his old friend Randal Mc-Farlane, now living there. Many here will remember Randal. Ralph reports that he is doing remarkably well for a man of 96 years. It was really good to meet Ralph in person, after 11 years of friendship by letter. Turns out there is one final chapter about Ralph's old dog Champ, so this space will be given over to that story. If any wondered about Champ's fate, read on. With his luck with dogs, maybe Ralph should just get himself a budgie.

"Part Five - Champ Has to Go" by Ralph N. Coles.

For all the above reasons, I realized that Champ would never be the dog I hoped for when bringing him home 3 1/2 years earlier. So it was then I looked around for someone with a farm where he would have a good home and lots of room to roam. Roy Ellerton, son of George Ellerton, was a fellow about my age, He and his wife had a farm in Sharpe Township some 12 miles or so northwest of Charlton. When I approached Roy he was not overly enthused, but said he would give him a try.

One evening in summer, Fay and I and the kids went for a walk down by the bridges This was two or three months after giving Champ to Roy Ellerton. We turned and were walking up the hill by the church, when who should come to meet us but Champ. He was glad to see us and we were glad to see him also, but I wondered what had happened that he ran away from Roy. He would have travelled the boundary road, but must have been confused when he came to Stoney Lonesome and turned north instead of south; as Uncle Burt Rodgers had seen him earlier in the day at his farm, 4 miles north of town. We kept Champ overnight. The next day, I took him back to Roy.

Another few months went by and I asked Roy how the dog was doing. He really didn't answer but said "Oh, he won't be bothering anyone anymore". I didn't ask details. I didn't want to know, but I took his answer to mean that he had put him down and I really didn't want to hear that. I felt guilty that I had not done better with him.

The only other dog we ever had was a cute little Beagle that I bought for the kids a few years after we first moved to Hamilton. They named him Boots and Boots was a real yapper. He wouldn't keep quiet. He would bark all day and into the evening. Our neighbour at the time was working night shift and trying to sleep during the day and complained about the constant barking.

A customer of mine at the time was an Amish barn builder and farmer in the Norwich area. So, much to the chagrin of our kids we gave Boots to him. A year or so later I asked how Boots was doing and I guess he barked once too often and was kicked by a horse and that was the end of Boots. That was the end of dogs for us. If I were applying for a job, I would never describe myself as a "Dog Trainer." THE END.

Next column will include Ralph's unedited report on status of the Charlton Heritage Centre; along with his plea for donations toward needed repairs to preserve the historic building for posterity.

By the time this column sees print, NOR ARC should be busy erecting the 701 canopy. It's getting a bit tiresome to keep on saying this, but one of these times, it will fool us all and be true. Stay tuned and watch for the official grand opening sometime this fall. Thanks for your patience. Donations still welcome and appreciated.

FARMING Roots that run deep

Dairy: an industry in constant growth

What are the dangers related to antibiotic resistance?

Antibiotics play a critical role in keeping both humans and animals healthy. In agriculture, they're used to treat and prevent various diseases that threaten livestock populations. However, the misuse of these often-unregulated medications represents a source of contention for world health, food safety and global development.

What is antibiotic resistance?

Antibiotic resistance occurs when bacteria become immune to the drugs commonly used to kill them. For example, when you take antibiotics to cure a bout of pneumonia, a few bacteria might survive the treatment. Over time, the surviving bacteria could potentially develop into a new kind of pneumonia that typical antibiotics can't cure. Scenarios like this pose a real threat to humans and animals alike.

Preventive measures

To combat the spread of antibiotic resistance, there are a number of precautionary measures that farmers can take.

- Only administer medication to livestock according to a veterinarian's recommendations.
- Avoid using antibiotics solely to prevent disease.
- Regularly vaccinate livestock to reduce the need for antibi-
- Practice and promote healthy practices at every stage of production and transformation of animal and plant products.
- Adopt a sustainable system that favours biosecurity.
- Prioritize farming conditions that respect the well-being of animals.
