Forest fires – safety information

Every year, Ontario’s Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry and local fire departments respond to hundreds of forest fires.

HAZARD INFORMATION

While forest fires can be dangerous to people and property, being prepared in advance and knowing what actions to take can better protect you.

For more information on forest fires and your safety, visit the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry.

For more information on forest fires and your health, visit the Ministry of Health and Long Term Care.

SAFETY TIPS

If you are indoors:

- Move away from outside walls
- Close doors but leave them unlocked
- Close windows, vents and blinds
- Remove lightweight curtains
- Open the fireplace damper and close fireplace screens
- Turn a light on in each room to make your home easier to see in heavy smoke
- Turn off air conditioners
- Have a flashlight, extra batteries and a battery-powered radio close at hand in case the power goes out
- Keep all family members and pets together

If you are told to leave your home:

- If instructed to evacuate immediately, do so
- Choose a route away from fire hazards – see Ontario’s Emergency area orders and listen to radio or TV
- Watch for changes in speed and direction of fire and smoke
- Wear clothing and footwear that can protect you against flying sparks and ashes
- Take your pets with you
- If there is time before you leave:
 - * Pack as you would for a week's vacation: clothes, cash, medications, etc.
 - * Remove flammable materials away from your house
 - * Turn on sprinklers to wet the lawn
 - * Turn off the gas line to your home
- Tell someone when you leave and where you are going

If you are outdoors during a wildfire:

- Don’t try to outrun the fire — find a pond or river to crouch in
- If you’re not near water, go to a lower level clearing
- If you’re near a road, lie face down along the road cut or in the ditch. Cover yourself with soil or anything else that will shield you from the fire’s heat
- Protect your lungs by breathing air closest to the ground through a moist cloth to avoid inhaling smoke

Tips on how to be FireSmart

- Shore lunch and campfires are responsible for wildfires every spring. Residents are reminded that they must tend their fires at all times, making sure to put them dead out before leaving. If it is windy, the risk of a wildfire is high – don’t burn!
- Residents planning on burning grass, brush or other wood debris should consider composting or taking material to landfill sites instead. Each spring, grass fires get out of control and cause needless damage to barns, homes and cottages.
- Planning to use fireworks this weekend? Under the Forest Fires Prevention Act (FFPA), any person who sets off fireworks is responsible to ensure any hot residue from the discharge of fireworks is extinguished. There may also be municipal by-laws in place regarding the use of fireworks.
- Residents are reminded of their responsibilities under the FFPA. All forest fires are investigated to determine the cause, and a person can be held responsible for the costs of extinguishing or property damage incurred by a forest fire.

Residents within organized municipalities should check with local fire departments or municipal offices for any burning restrictions in their area.

If power outage results

- Important fire safety tips during power outages

Prepare now

- Review and discuss the safety tips with your entire household to make sure everyone understands what to do in a forest/wildland fire
- Clearly mark all driveway entrances and display your address so that fire vehicles can easily find your home
- Practice evacuating your home. Teach all household members the technique of "stop, drop and roll" in case clothes catch on fire
- Install smoke detectors and sprinklers on every floor and by all sleeping areas
- Plan several escape routes away from your home by car and by foot
- Create a safety zone around your home. Modify or eliminate brush, trees and other vegetation near your home
- Consult with your local fire department about making your home fire-resistant

FARMING Roots that run deep

Fodder plants: how to make the right choice

Fodder plants are mainly used to feed livestock. When chosen wisely, they can even contribute to the prosperity of your farmland. That's why it's important to choose ones known for their various benefits.

SELECTION CRITERIA

To properly determine the type of fodder you should plant, you need to consider how you plan on using your land. Do you plan to develop a pasture or a hayfield? You'll also need to consider the type of soil you'll be working with (wet, dry, acidic, etc.) and your region's climate. You should also consider when you'd want to harvest your crop (spring or summer) and how long you expect to operate. Finally, before you make a choice, consider how long it will take to grow each different crop as well as their nutritional value based on the needs of your livestock.

MAIN SPECIES

Fodder plants can be divided into two main categories: grasses and legumes. Here are some species that are frequently used by farmers:

- Alfalfa • Barley • Bromegrass • Birdsfoot • Clover • Maize

If you'd like to improve the longevity and diversity of your crop — and the nitrogen content of your soil — plant a mixture of grasses and legumes. But be careful: avoid integrating invasive species such as smooth bromegrass and crested wheatgrass, as they propagate too quickly and can affect the overall development of your crop.
