Accessibility concern with social housing complex

Darlene Wroe

Speaker Reporter

TEMISKAMING SHORES - While Temiskaming Shores council is pleased with the progress on the plans for a new social housing complex on Grant Drive, a concern was raised at city council's Tuesday, September 11, meeting.

The Temiskaming Shores Accessibility Advisory Committee (TSAAC) has identified that one of the accessibility parking spots is too far from the unit on the northeast corner of the building.

The matter was raised by Councillor Mike McArthur who sits on the committee.

He said the committee is pleased with the plan to plant coniferous trees on the north side of the property to reduce the snow coming into the area, but, he said, "they weren't pleased with one of the parking spaces and they wanted a change, because they felt that persons in inclement weather would have difficulty getting to the door."

The matter has already gone to the contractor who has indicated that any revision to the building which would address the issue "would be a huge added cost," noted McArthur.

"I don't want to stop this project," he said. "I want this to go ahead, but I also sit on an accessibility committee that is somewhat concerned about the parking that I understand is going to be an extra cost."

It was noted that there will be a ramp up to the building and a walkway around much of the building.

Parking matters

Accessibility concern with social housing complex

SOLUTIONS CONSIDERED

Temiskaming Shores planner Jennifer Pye responded that the matter has been discussed with the District of Timiskaming Social Services Administration Board (DTSSAB), which is heading up the construction, regarding the possibility of revising the plan so that the building would be turned. But she said the problem with doing so would be that the services for the building would have to be extended to the north to reach the mechanical room.

"The cost was prohibitive," she said. An extended parking space was considered and the cost was found to be about the same as turning the building.

Councillor Doug Jelly, who chairs DTSSAB, noted that the seniors homes on Market Street have similar distances between the doors and the parking spaces.

"We are working with a limited amount of funding," said

Celebration of Life will follow with a lunch and refreshments at the Harley

Community Centre from 12:00 to 3:00.

Everyone welcome.

Jelly, adding, "DTSSAB is very attentive to the care of their property." Ice and snow removal is regularly carried out, he stated.

Mayor Carman Kidd added that the sidewalks would all be sanded and snow removed.

DTSSAB housing manager Kelly Black was also present and commented that snow fences will be installed around the property until the trees mature.

She noted that efforts are being made to keep the costs within the scope of the project. But she said, "We are certainly aware of some of the challenges with regard to accessibility. We're committed to try to do the best that we can."

There will be two accessible units in each building.

ONTARIO ENERGY BOARD NOTICE ONTARIO POWER GENERATION INC.

Ontario Power Generation Inc. has applied to recover certain account balances and to raise its payment amounts.

Learn more. Have your say.

Ontario Power Generation Inc. has applied to the Ontario Energy Board for approval to recover, over a three-year period, the 2017 year-end balances in certain deferral and variance accounts related to its nuclear generating facilities and most of its hydroelectric generating facilities beginning on January 1, 2019.

Ontario Power Generation Inc. has also applied to increase the amount it charges for the output of most of its hydroelectric generating facilities for 2019 using an Ontario Energy Board-approved formula that is tied to inflation and other factors intended to promote efficiency.

If the application is approved as filed, Ontario Power Generation Inc. has calculated that the monthly bill for a typical residential customer would increase by $1.39 in 2019 and by $0.06 in 2020, and decrease by $0.29 in 2021. These amounts do not reflect any impact of the Fair Hydro Plan. Other customers, including businesses, will also be affected. The balances in some deferral and variance accounts will continue to be recovered in future years but the recovery mechanism will be determined in a future proceeding.

THE ONTARIO ENERGY BOARD WILL HOLD A PUBLIC HEARING

The Ontario Energy Board (OEB) will hold a public hearing to consider Ontario Power Generation Inc.'s request. We will determine whether the company has used the applicable formulas required by the OEB and whether to approve Ontario Power Generation Inc.'s request to recover the balances in the deferral and variance accounts. We will also hear questions and arguments from individuals and groups that represent consumers of electricity. At the end of this hearing, the OEB will decide what, if any, increase will be allowed.

The OEB is an independent and impartial public agency. We make decisions that serve the public interest. Our goal is to promote a financially viable and efficient energy sector that provides you with reliable energy services at a reasonable cost.

BE INFORMED AND HAVE YOUR SAY

You have the right to information regarding this application and to be involved in the process.

- You can review Ontario Power Generation Inc.'s application on the OEB's website now.
- You can file a letter with your comments, which will be considered during the hearing.
- You can become an active participant (called an intervenor). Apply by October 3, 2018 or the hearing will go ahead without you and you will not receive any further notice of the proceeding.
- At the end of the process, you can review the OEB's decision and its reasons on our website.

LEARN MORE

These payment amounts relate to generation from Ontario Power Generation Inc.'s nuclear facilities and most of its hydroelectric facilities. They make up part of the Electricity line on your bill. ### Power In Unity

by Xavier Kataquapit

The labour union movement has a lot in common with First Nation advocacy. Both movements seek to represent common people for the greater good.

Long ago, labour was popularly viewed as doing good for everyone. Over the past 30 years things have changed. These days whenever I hear about unions, workers rights or strikes, it is usually from a negative point of view. We seem to suffer very short memories when it comes to recognizing how important unions have been for working people. Decent pensions, the average work week, rates of pay, safety in the workplace, sick leave, vacation time, maternity leave and many other protections and benefits are the result of unions fighting for the common man and woman. Unions came about because none of this existed at one point and workers were little more than slaves.

According to Ed Finn, who once wrote a labour relations column for the Toronto Star for 15 years, throughout the 1970s, just about every major Canadian newspaper had reporters and columnists assigned specifically to labour-management relations. The job of these journalists was to provide well-balanced reporting of what was happening on any issues regarding workers and their employers. Today, there are virtually no dedicated reporters assigned to labour-management relations. That work is left to regular reporters who cover all sorts of other news subjects. This means that they seldom have the opportunity to dig deep into the complex issues that lead to strikes, work stoppages or issues of workers' rights. The importance of the unions and their leadership has been diminished.

A common phrase I hear often is that "unions have too much power," as if to imply that the workers of one area of industry have the collective power to control everything. In actual fact, the average worker and their salaries pale in comparison to what individual management professionals make.

In a study conducted in 2016, a report by the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives described how on average, a top-earning CEO in Canada will have already earned in less than one work day what the average worker makes in an entire year. The report showed how, on average, the annual compensation for the 100 highest paid CEOs at TSX-listed companies for 2016 hit a record $10.4 million, more than 200 times an average worker's salary of $49,738. That description leaves little doubt as to who has too much power in labour-management relations.

I realized a long time ago that those leaders representing labour have a lot in common with our First Nation leadership in that we are continually striving to make life better for people. There still is power in unity and we are all capable of coming together to stand for our mutual goals dedicated to fairness and a sharing of

Supplanting the rule of law?

The average Ontarian knows governments are required to act in accordance with the law and, in particular, with the Canadian Constitution, even when governments don't agree with the law.

Otherwise, the law can be bent and shaped like a pretzel whichever way the government of the day wants it to go.

In the case of Premier Doug Ford, this would appear to be his wishes as he attempts to enact the Notwithstanding Clause, part of the Canadian Constitution because a judge ruled he couldn't interfere in the municipal election with regards to trimming the number of councillors allowed in the City of Toronto.

Doug Ford has repeatedly said he is furthering democracy by attempting to use the Notwithstanding Clause, while others feel he is turning his back on democracy.

Still others feel he has a deep-seated grudge against the Toronto council from when he served a single term as a municipal councillor.

The Canadian Constitution cannot be used for anyone's personal vendettas or agendas.

Democracy is about benefitting the many, not the few or the one.

We live in a law and order society and everyone, even the most powerful, should respect the laws of the land.

High profile Toronto lawyer Marie Henein said this: "The judiciary acts as an independent check on government authority because it is unelected, not in spite of it. That is how we, as a democratic country, have decided to govern ourselves. It has worked pretty well so far."

We know there are places like Russia, North Korea and some Middle East countries where leaders can do as they please, but in Canada, every citizen is protected by the rule of law delivered by

Crash in Marter Township results in charges

MARTER TOWNSHIP (Staff) — The Temiskaming Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police responded to a call for a single motor vehicle collision on Highway 624, east of Englehart in Marter Township, just before 3 p.m. on September 17.

Further investigation revealed the tractor-trailer had been travelling southbound on Highway 624 and struck the shoulder losing control and the vehicle struck a utility pole as a result.

Police say the highway was closed in both directions as a result of live wires and phone lines on the roadway. Hydro One and Northern Telephone attended the scene to repair the downed wires.

The driver of the vehicle sustained non-life threatening injuries and was charged with: Change lane not in safety, contrary to Section 142 (1) of the Highway Traffic Act. He was also charged with careless driving contrary to Section 130 of the Highway Traffic Act.

Tips to Avoid Seasonal Depression

Many people feel a little sad when summer comes to an end and a long season of cold weather is approaching. Seasonal depression or seasonal affective disorder (otherwise known as SAD) is a type of depression that happens at certain times of the year, usually in the fall and winter. The symptoms are pretty much the same other types of depression including less energy, irritability and loss of interest in things that once made you happy.

If you're feeling any of these symptoms already or they sound familiar from last year, there are a few things you can do to prevent SAD from getting worse and make yourself feel better.

Get Plenty of Exercise

Exercise not only helps to improve your physical health and reduce your risks for a number of chronic diseases, but it's been shown to be a great mood booster.

Try Light Therapy

This has been tested as an effective treatment for SAD because it tricks the body into thinking the days are longer and brighter than they really are. It involves sitting under a special bright light for a certain amount of time each day. You could ask your health care provider about this or just try to get as much sunlight as you can outdoors every day and keep your curtains and blinds open to let the light in.

Socialize Often

If you tend to make excuses for not going out in the fall and winter, you need to get yourself out of that habit. Keeping to yourself will only make you feel lonely and that's what you're trying to avoid so pick up the phone and call a friend or family member make plans to go out for lunch and/or for a nice walk.

If you think you might suffer from seasonal depression and might be interested in light therapy, the Temagami FHT has a SAD light that is available free of charge for our rostered patients to use. Just call the office to schedule a time. We also have a 24/7 fitness centre available at very low membership rates, i.e. $20 per month for an adult, $12 for a senior or $15 for students.

The Temagami Medical Centre and Family Health Team is committed to keeping you as healthy as possible!

Fox on the run at TDSS schoolyard

Sue Nielsen

Speaker Reporter

TEMISKAMING SHORES —Things got a little wild at Timiskaming District Secondary School (TDSS) on the morning of Thursday, September 6.

A red fox was spotted roaming around the schoolyard and it appeared to be disoriented.

TDSS teacher John Zubyck called Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry conservation officer Pete Gilboe to investigate the issue.

"The office called me saying there was a fox roaming around the south entrance of the school in the morning. I then called ... Gilboe for assistance on how to proceed with the animal. I was outside observing it and many people were stopping to see what it was doing," said Zubyck in an email interview.

Zubyck recruited Grade 12 students Jordan Menard and Cody Goddard to help capture the fox.

As water and food sources become scarce, wildlife can be drawn towards developed areas.

"I observed the fox to be very hungry. Perhaps he was just dehydrated and hungry and a bit disoriented. It didn't appear to have mange," said Gilboe.

"Liz Cowell specializes in wild animal rescues so I called her to come and help with this rescue," he said as he moved the animal away from the school to a wooded location a couple of streets away.

Cowell, a wildlife rehabilitation specialist, arrived and both she and Gilboe removed the netting from the fox and placed it inside a cardboard box.

Cowell brought the animal to her home for assessment.

"It may be dehydrated, have distemper or simply just be hungry. I will give it some food and water and then perhaps it will bounce back. If not then it may require further help from a wild-life refuge centre," said Cowell.

Cowell noticed the animal was holding its head to the side and the fox was sent to the Wild at Heart Refuge Centre in Lively, Ontario.

Dr. Rod Juoppi is the veterinarian who runs Wild at Heart.

In an email message Dr. Juoppi said, "The fox has a head tilt and balancing issues that can result from a head injury or damage to the vestibular system. So far, no evidence of recovery but in some cases, they will start to recover over a two-week period. He is eating well and seems pain free."

The fox will be released into the wild as soon as it is fully re-

If someone encounters sick, injured, young or lost wildlife in their backyard or inside town limits they should call the MNRF at 1-877-847-7667.

The MNRF number is not an emergency number. If the situation is a matter of public safety call 9-1-1.

Conservation officer Pete Gilboe, left, and wildlife rehabilitator Liz Cowell gingerly remove a fox from some netting in a wooded area near TDSS. They placed it in a box for transfer to Cowell's residence. The animal was eventually sent to the Wild at Heart Refuge Centre in Lively for further care. (Staff photo by Sue Nielsen)

Can you believe that Saturday is the first day of Fall? Still not sure why it isn't the 21st like we were taught in school – can you believe that we were taught something that wasn't correct? The forecast is certainly looking much more fall-like than the last few weeks.

Little Miss Boating still hasn't heard a definitive yes or no about the Canadian Pan Am Games water ski team so we're still up skiing at first light almost every morning. I've only had to wear my winter coat once but the gloves a few times.

Now that the weather is starting to cool off we need to remember the importance of wearing a PFD. Once that water drops to about 17°C your gasp response to hitting the water really increases. Especially important to wear one if hunting in a boat because this is usually done from small boats and there can be some excitement that might cause sudden movements which often lead to swimming – heavier fall clothes also make you sink faster. Try not to wear your rubber boots in the boat if you can help it - they are like anchors if you fall in and even though they are easy to get off on land they don't just slip off in the water. Chest waders are even worse. Be safe, it isn't difficult.

Looks like we're going to get some rain and wind from the tail end of Hurricane rain as two weeks ago and at least it is not on the weekend. I guess we were sort of spoiled to be having such great weather when they were the other hand, I don't believe they ever see -40. It may well have been the hurricane that drove our warm weather up. Funny how the tail end gets here and it gets cold and stays cool for days or even weeks.

Remember that you need proof of competency (a licence) to drive any power driven vessel. Now that the push is off since most boaters have their licence some new boaters aren't getting their licence. I don't believe any buddy teaches the course locally anymore – your best bet is to go online to the Power Squadron website at cps-ecp.ca to take a course. You may also have to do the course again if you took it from a provider who is no longer in business and you have lost your card - it is the organization that gave your course that is responsible for replacing lost cards, not the government.
