NEW LISKEARD - On November 11, at 5:30 p.m., the bells will toll across New Liskeard and Haileybury to mark 100 years since the end of World War I.

The bell tower at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in New Liskeard is one of many churches across Canada which will participate in the Ringing of the Bells.

In Haileybury the bells of Paroisse Ste. Croix/Holy Cross Parish, and also the bells of St. Paul and St. John Anglican Church will be ringing. The bells at the Haileybury Fire Hall will also join in the event to honour Canada's veterans and commemorate the 100th anniversary of the end of the First World War.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Pastor George Paraskevopoulos, who is also padre to the New Liskeard Royal Canadian Legion Branch 33, will be leading a service at the church in New Liskeard at 9:30 a.m. There will be a parade to the cenotaph following the service. The traditional Remembrance Day ceremony will take place at the cenotaph that morning.

"Our organist (Autumn Gambles) is going to be playing the chimes through our bell tower," said Paraskevopoulos of the New Liskeard event.

"Prior to the 100 tolls, she's going to play a short piece called Let There Be Peace On Earth."

The Royal Canadian Legion is initiating this event to commemorate the occasion, which it states affected the majority of Canadians at the time, whether a soldier, Continued on 3a

DID YOU GET THE SPEAKER THIS WEEK? Here are some of the stories in our NOVEMBER 7 edition...

- In spite of meetings and discussions, Englehart area representatives have not been able to convince the CIBC to stay in Englehart.
- The final makeup of the new incoming Cobalt council, which will be sworn in in December, is still not known.
- City council has approved rezoning that will permit a residential development on the Beach Gardens property to go ahead.
- Drugs were seized and a woman was charged after police stopped a woman in Cobalt on the weekend.

- Local doctors and their partners danced the night away at Northern College last weekend for a good cause, the Temiskaming Hospital Foundation Care Close to Home Campaign.
- A purple scarf may be a symbol of someone wrapped in courage supporting an end to violence against women and children.
- A prelude to the Christmas season is the annual Operation Christmas Child shoebox campaign.
- The New Liskeard Lions Midget hockey team are on pace for a record number of wins this season.
- As the Cubs approach the middle of the season, they are making a push to solidify a middle of the pack position in the Great North Midget League standings.
- Our C-front this week features a story about Peter and Sharron Graydon, how they met, fell in love and live a happy, successful life.
- Included with this week's Speaker is the annual Remembrance Day special section.

a family member or people working on the home fronts.

“On November 11, 1918, the ringing of church bells erupted spontaneously across the country, as an outpouring of relief that four years of war had come to an end,” says BBC News.

All religious organizations across Canada have been asked by the Legion to assist in marking the 100 years by ringing their bells at sunset to emulate that moment when the bells rang November 11, 1918, says Danny Martin of the Royal Canadian Legion Dominion Command.

Martin said he wants people to be aware that when they hear the bell chiming that it is part of Remembrance Day, and he hopes that people will pause to remember veterans and their families.

TEMISKAMING SHORES - Local painter Martin Foley and his wife Kathy Foley, a photographer, will be presenting their works at the Temiskaming Art Gallery.

Both are known for transforming the everyday into sculptural beauty through their different approaches.

Martin Foley’s acrylic paintings focus precisely on beautiful details of northern landscapes and nature.

The texture of rocks, the northern light, and other aspects of everyday scenes are transformed through his works to make viewers wish to take another look at things they might pass every day.

Kathy Foley’s photography also captures nature, providing it with a crispness that allows the viewer to further contemplate the subject.

Temiskaming Art Gallery curator Melissa LaPorte notes that her photographs show a gift for capturing a fleeting moment in time, such as the point when an eagle lifts away from the water.

The couple frequently venture out into wilderness settings to find the images which they bring back to the viewers.

This exhibition, titled A Northern Perspective, will be open to the public on Friday, November 9, says LaPorte. The reception for the show will take place Sunday, November 18, from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Strength Training to Age Well

You know exercise is important to your long-term health and well-being, and you probably also know your routine should include some weight or strength training....but do you know why?

- Weight bearing exercise is the first line of defense against the loss of muscle mass that occurs with age.
- Building strength can help you avoid falls and reduce the risk of loss of mobility, independence and quality of life
- High intensity progressive resistance strength training is one of the best ways to build leg strength and improve walking speed in older adults

If you don't build and maintain your muscles, there's a good chance that at some point they'll let you down – literally!

High intensity progressive resistance strength training may sound intimidating but it really isn't. It just means gradually increasing the weight or resistance in order to challenge and strength your muscles. You start with a weight that is hard, but that you're able to manage and increase the weight as it becomes easier.

What the Research Shows

High intensity progressive resistance strength training has been found to be one of the best ways to improve walking speed in older adults. This is good to know as a slow walking pace is associated with a greater risk of falls, injuries and hospitalization. Improving your walking speed may mean a longer life and better health.

Staying strong will provide you with a better chance of enjoying a long, healthy and vigorous life.

COME FOR A DAY

William Smith, a volunteer at the Cobalt Firefighter’s Museum, posed with a “friend” outside the museum at the November 2 Cobalt Shines event. “(It) was a huge success, bringing hundreds of people out to participate,” said Deborah Ranchuk from White Mountain Publishing in Cobalt. “The Grand Prize winner was Dale Taylor of Cobalt,” she said. “We thank all those who opened their establishments, and went the extra mile to welcome all those who came for the fun.” (Staff photo by Sue Nielsen)

Guarding against identify theft during Senior Safety Week

DISTRICT (Staff) — National Senior Safety Week is November 6 to 12 and the Canada Safety Council is shedding light on how seniors can keep themselves and their information safe and out of the hands of criminals.

The Competition Bureau of Canada estimates that seniors between the ages of 60-79 were scammed out of $94 million between January 2014 and December 2017.

“Criminals tend to look for the path of least resistance and, too often, that passes through our most vulnerable sections of society,” said president of Canada Safety Council Jack Smith.

“Seniors seem to be easy targets for a lot of scammers, which is why we feel it’s crucial that we do our part to keep the elderly as informed and prepared as possible to avoid being victimized.”

EMAIL SCAMS

When it comes to email scams, look for spelling or grammatical errors to detect if the email is legitimate.

These emails can often come from unknown email addresses and do not address the recipient by name and feature low quality images.

Additionally, malicious messages may encourage recipients to take urgent actions involving clicking on links or opening attachments, providing private personal information or calling a specific phone number. Unless a person is absolutely certain of a message’s origins, do not download attachments or click on links as they may contain viruses, spyware and malware. Further advice is to refrain from using any method of contact shared in the message.

Rather it is better to contact the organization using the phone number or email listed on their website and inquire about the message’s legitimacy. Messages that appear malicious in nature should be reported to the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre and deleted.

Here are some additional tips to keep information out of the wrong hands:

- Limit what you share online. Do not give out your social insurance number online under any circumstances.
- Don’t share personal information online, including credit card information and your address, unless on a secure website. To check, look for a padlock icon next to the site’s address.
- Many scam calls are the “cold call” variety. If you’re unsure, let the call go to voicemail.
- If you are asked for information over the phone, ensure that you are the one who initiated the call and you know who you’re talking to. Be wary of incoming calls as you may be speaking with someone who is not affiliated with the organization they claim to be from.
- Keep your digital household clean and ensure your software is kept up to date and deactivate or delete accounts or apps that are no longer in use.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Concrete plan needed for steel

Dear editor,

Justin Trudeau’s renegotiation of NAFTA has failed our aluminum and steel industries who continue to face devastating tariffs imposed by the United States.

Programs to deliver duty relief aren’t helping, as businesses trying to access this help face delays. Even the national aluminum associations of Canada, the United States and Mexico have issued a joint letter urging for a quick end to tariffs on their products.

The fact is, instead of putting forward a concrete plan to deal with U.S. protectionism, Justin Trudeau failed to deliver any measures that would have prepared the steel and aluminum industry for the possibility of tariffs.

Conservatives have travelled the country and spoken to many small and medium-sized businesses who say red tape and bureaucracy imposed by the Trudeau government is hindering their access to the relief they need. By signing the new NAFTA trade deal with no assurances that destructive tariffs on steel and aluminum will be lifted, Justin Trudeau has failed to protect our economy.

Canada’s Conservatives are standing with Canadian workers employed in the steel and aluminum industry as we respond to the devastating tariffs being imposed by the United States.

Sincerely,
Dean Allison, MP
Conservative Shadow Minister for International Trade

Taking a preventative approach to crime

TEMISKAMING SHORES (Special/Staff) – You can help deter crime in your neighbourhood.

That’s a fundamental message from the Ontario Provincial Police during Crime Prevention Week in Ontario, which runs November 4 through 10.

“Everyone has a role to play in our community safety and security,” said Inspector Scott Hlady of the Temiskaming Ontario Provincial Police in a news release.

“Please ensure that your valuables and property are locked and secured in order to reduce the vulnerability to yourself and your family.

“We can’t do it alone, so we depend on everyone to do their part.”

The theme of this year’s initiative is “Help us help you,” and it’s promoting community safety and wellbeing as a shared responsibility.

The public awareness campaign is highlighting several initiatives.

SafeGuard Ontario, for example, provides information about steps that individual homeowners and business owners can take to prevent break-ins at their properties.

Lock It or Lose It focuses on preventing vehicle thefts and break-ins.

The Crime Prevention through Environmental Design program encourages the use of features such as lighting, fencing and window placement to improve visibility and decrease easy access by criminals.

In the Temagami area, the OPP and Temagami Lakes Association are promoting the Cottage Watch program to reduce the incidence of cottage break-ins.

In a news release, the OPP say that everyone who lives, works or goes to school in Ontario deserves to feel safe.

It’s encouraging residents to get involved in their community to increase safety and wellbeing.

The OPP are using social media, including its Twitter, Facebook and Instagram accounts, to showcase crime prevention tips and ideas.

CAPRICORN

You'll receive an unexpected promotion — perhaps following the departure of one of your co-workers. There will be nothing stopping you from sitting in for the boss while he or she is away on vacation. In any case, you'll get a salary raise.

December 22 - January 19

AQUARIUS

The conditions are ripe for quickly resolving a bunch of your concerns. At your job, a sudden flash of inspiration will guide you in your projects and make it possible for you to accomplish your goals.

January 20 - February 18

PISCES

Rejuvenate your body and mind adequately and you'll manage to improve your standing in all domains of your life. Inspiration will help you bring about the transformation necessary for your well-being and will make you more open to a deeper spirituality.

February 19 - March 20

ARIES

You'll be at the head of a group taking part in a highly memorable activity. The outcome will reflect the effort you put into the project. And you'll overcome a bit of shyness in the process.

March 21 - April 19

TAURUS

You'll have to adopt numerous responsibilities this week. You'll succeed at effectively arranging your priorities. Additionally, people close to you will help you draw up a strategy for being more efficient.

April 20 - May 20

GEMINI

Planning a return to school isn't easy. There's always the matter of deciding on the most favourable courses, ones that correspond to your values and life goals. Perseverance and support from those closest to you will be your keys to success.

May 21 - June 21

CANCER

When faced with a choice that will have a big impact on your future, you'll have to weigh the pros and cons before deciding. You might also join a spiritual movement, which will allow you to significantly broaden your horizons.

June 22 - July 22

You'll need to spend plenty of time preparing for a negotiation so that it turns out favourably for you. You'll succeed at finding miraculous solutions to all your financial problems or to obtaining your dream job.

August 23 - September 22

LIBRA

After having carefully calculated what you're able to spend, you'll update your wardrobe with clothes from the best shops. You'll go to extra trouble with your appearance so that you can fill more important roles at your place of work.

September 23 - October 22

SCORPIO

It won't always be easy to get out of the house. However, you might be able to do part of your job from the comfort of your own home and in doing so, double your efficiency. You'll also undertake a big household cleaning.

October 23 - November 21

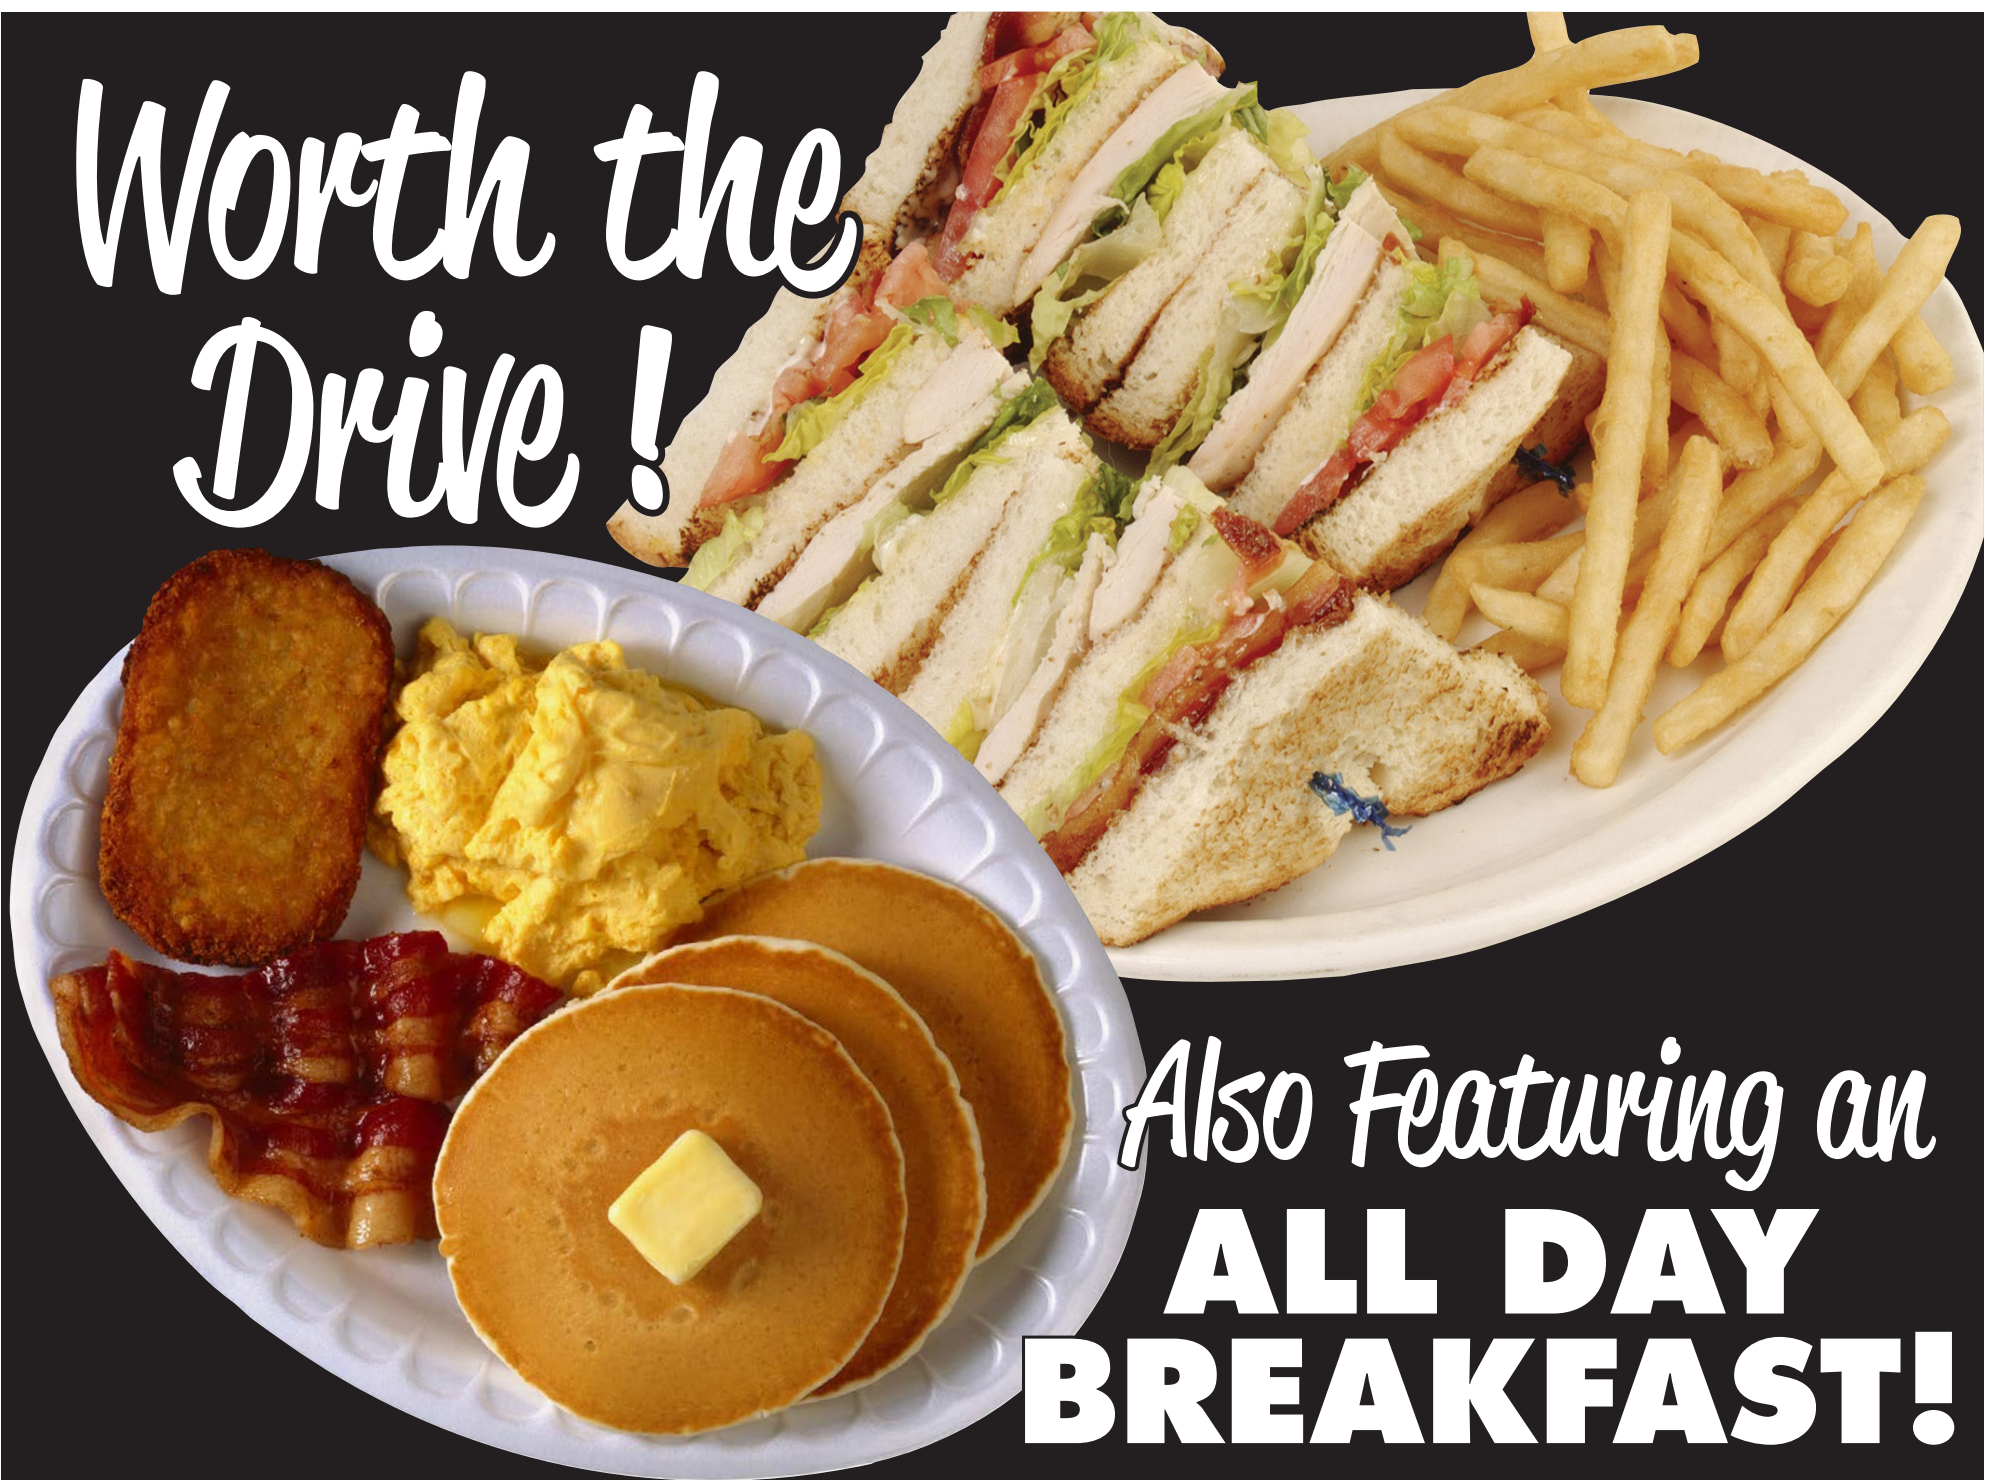

SAGITTARIUS

Some confusion might arise between you and a family member. Set the record straight sooner rather than later. Drawing out the process is in no one's best interest, and it's essential that there's no doubt as to who's making the decisions. Otherwise, you won't see the light at the end of the tunnel.

Trial continues for service sharing

Darlene Wroe
Speaker Reporter

CHAMBERLAIN TOWNSHIP - Chamberlain Township and the Municipality of Charlton and Dack continue to share administrative services, and sometimes public works services to explore the potential cost-saving benefits.

Chamberlain Reeve Kerry Stewart says Chamberlain Township council, which was acclaimed with two newcomers, will be reviewing the arrangement in the new year.

“I’m pleased so far,” he said of the arrangement in which the two municipalities are sharing administrative services, as well as occasionally sharing public works services.

“We’ll be reviewing that in the new year to see if we want to continue that or move forward on our own.”

He said the municipalities “were hoping it would work out as a cost-saving for both townships.” But, he added, “It remains to be seen yet whether we’re going to be able to get enough time-sharing between the two offices.”

Dan Thibeault is the Charlton-Dack clerk-treasurer who is providing administrative services for Chamberlain Township as well.

Deanna Stephenson is the deputy-clerk for Chamberlain and she remains at the office, providing administrative services there three days a week.

“It seems to be working out okay,” commented Stewart of the reduced hours for the Chamberlain township office.

“People are getting used to that.”

Currently the Chamberlain office is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays. HOPING FOR SAVINGS

Stewart expressed optimism that the arrangement will work out well. “I’m hoping it will work out into a cost savings for both municipalities,” he said.

He added that the two municipalities have also been able to share services of their public works personnel when some staff have been off and staff in the neighbouring municipality were able to fill in. The two municipalities have also been able to share some equipment as well, he said.

Finding ways to reduce costs is important to Chamberlain Township, as it is to all area municipalities.

Municipalities find themselves faced with funding large infrastructure projects (with some government support) and Chamberlain Township is now looking at the need to replace a Bailey bridge on the Fifth Concession.

Engineers are now conducting a study on the bridge to determine the best method to address the need for a new bridge, explained Stewart.

“It’s a little bit more expensive than we counted on but we’re going to try to find a way to make it work,” he said.
